Brave Republicans Remember Floyd Collins Each Lady Three Husbands? Automobiles, 3 Billions

Current Events

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1925, by Star Co.)

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE, penalized by the noble Republican party, will come last in committees, ranking below Democrats, and rated as one of a minority party.

That will not hurt La Follette, but it will hurt some Republicans, and such childish, petty revenge disgraces every Republican responsible for it.

Theodore Roosevelt ran as an Independent and defeated Taft, electing Wilson. The Republican party did not ostracize him. It was afraid of him.

IT WILL HAVE cause to regret its cowardly treatment of La Follette. Many voters that would not vote for La Follette, and do not share his views, prefer him to some regular Republicans.

They know that La Follette is a courageous and honest man.

IN SAND CAVE, Kentucky, 300 feet from the entrance, Floyd Collins has lain since last Friday morning, pinned down by a huge rock that fell, crushed his leg and held him fast. His brother has offered $500 to any doctor that will crawl into the cave, chloroform the suffering man, cut off his leg and release him.

IF YOU HAVE small worries troubling you, think of Floyd Collins, and cheer up. And remember that a few years ago, in the childhood of many men living, there was no chloroform or other anaesthetic to help surgeons. Men were strapped down, and legs or arms amputated, while they yelled or endured in silence. Strangest of all is the fact that many clergymen denounced the discoverers of anaesthetics. They said God wanted men to suffer and it was a sin to interfere with His desires. An All-Merciful God enjoying the sight of agony is an interesting conception.

THE WRONG KIND of religion, festering in feeble brains, often attacks science. When quinine, only sure cure for malaria, was brought from South America, virtuous Scotch and other Protestant clergymen said it was sinful to use it, because a Roman Catholic had discovered it.

MRS. TENNAL, lady editor of the Sabetha Herald, in Kansas, tells Kansas editors at Topeka that every woman needs three husbands. One for society, one to make money, one to look after the housekeeping. "Present day husbands are satisfactory, so far as they go," she says, "but they do not go far enough."

THE LEARNED Mrs. Tennal knows that polyandry, meaning several husbands, was once the rule among many nations. It still prevails among certain semi-barbarous peoples.

And the husbands manage to get along fairly well.

The polyandrous husband at home for the moment leaves his shoes on a weapon outside the polyconjugal door. Other husbands, returning, take the hint and tactfully retire. See Westermarck's great book on marriage for the details.

POLYANDRY, HOWEVER, will not solve the problem. The husband must multiply his accomplishments, while increasing his tendency to fidelity. The American husband makes money, but does not know how to pay compliments. Many European men pay marvelous compliments, but can't make money.

The combination of "three in one" husband will appear in the course of evolution.

LAST YEAR this country paid out three billion dollars for automobiles.

That's a large sum of money, but no money was better spent. To economize on automobiles would mean to economize on fresh air, health, happiness, and it would mean waste of time more than [illegible]ting the saving in money.

IT IS POSSIBLE to tax wealth and business too heavily, for the public good. Discouraging the man that understands

BOY'S CURIOSITY LED TO LEXINGTON KILLING

STOLEN KISSES LAND YOUTH IN TOILS

Herbert Julian of Neponset was arrested today as Dorchester's "Jack the Hugger." Photo shows him dodging cameras while on way to jail. He is under observation at the Psychopathic Hospital pending appearance in court for trial. A stolen kiss led to his capture.

POLICE NOW BELIEVE MYSTERY PACKAGES CAUSED GUN 'DUEL'

Curiosity over the contents of packages frequently carried by Joseph Statsky, Lexington High School football star, led to the slaying of George Travelene, eighteen years old, of Arlington Heights, police investigating their fatal duel were convinced today.

The police say they find nothing to indicate the two youths met outside the West View Cemetery with revolvers to fight for the smiles of a pretty girl, as was first believed.

That a fist fight preceded the shooting, in which Statsky was getting the worst of it, is also indicated, the police say, in evidence thus far uncovered.

Statsky, from his cot in the Symmes Arlington Hospital, where he was taken with a bullet in his shoulder, denies the fist fight, but one of Travelene's eyes is bruised and discolored.

The police have been informed

GIRL, 7, ADMITS SHE KILLED 3 BY POISON

Los Angeles, Feb. 3.—Police today were investigating one of the strangest cases ever brought to notice in California—that of Alsa Thompson, seven years old, who has confessed, officers say, that she caused the death of her twin sister and a woman by poison and attempted to poison eight other persons.

The girl was taken into custody upon request of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Platts, with whom she boarded, after a strange solution from a radio battery was found spread over the food that the Platts, with their infant daughter, as well as Maxine Thompson, the girl's two-year-old sister, were about to eat.

According to police, the little girl frankly admitted the poison attempts, saying she had caused the death of her twin sisters in ground

The complaint on which he was taken into custody was made by Dorothy Kalfort of No. 256 Geneva avenue, Dorchester, with eleven others to be preferred later, according to the police.

Bread Up in Two New England Cities

The general increase in bread prices in New England, intimated several days ago, has become effective in Worcester and Manchester, N. H.

In Worcester, the price on wheat and rye bread has been raised 1 cent for the small loaves and 2 cents for the larger ones.

In Manchester, a 22-ounce loaf of bread formerly selling for 10 cents, now rests 11, while French bread has been boosted from 8 to 10 cents a loaf.

The increased cost of flour is given as the reason for the increase.

REALTY MAN IS HELD IN BAD CHECK CASE

George S. Epstein of Walcott street, Dorchester, a real estate broker, with an office in the Pemberton Building, was arrested today by Inspectors Flaherty and Hing for the Quincy police. They charge Epstein with obtaining $61 on a worthless check, and attempting to get $208 and $37 on bad checks in an automobile transaction. Epstein was held for the Quincy authorities.

LEGINSKA IN NEWTON; DECLARED TO HAVE MENTAL BREAKDOWN

To her hundreds of friends and admirers Ethel Leginska, famous musician and composer, who disappeared from New York, today issued the following statement through the Boston American from the home of a friend where she is recovering from a serious mental breakdown:

It is my wish that many friends know, through the Boston Evening American, that I am recovering from a severe mental strain, induced byovework.

My physical condition is not impaired and it is my earnest hope that I will be able to resume my laborsa t an early date. I must have rest and complete quiet.

Ethel Leginska, world famous pianist, composer and conductor, who disappeared from New York a week ago Monday night while a fashionable society audience awaited her at Carnegie Hall, is in Newton.

Dr. Henry Watters of No. 47 Gratton street, Newton, is attending the famous musician at the home of a woman friend in that city according to one of the physician's associates.

Mrs. Allen Hubbard of Montvale road, Newton, Miss Leginska's most intimate acquaintance in authority for the statement that the musician is near Boston but denied that Leginska was in the Hubbard home. Mrs. Hubbard said:

"You can say that Miss Leginska is resting comfortably. She has suffered a severe nervous and mental breakdown but her present condition is not such as to cause worry on the part of her friends.

"I have not seen Leginska. It is correct to say that she is at the home of a friend near Boston.

A report that Leginska was being treated at the Newton Hospital in the Lower Falls section of the city was denied by the hospital officials.

SUBWAY IS TIED UP BY DERAILED TRAILER

Thousands of persons employed in the downtown district were late for work as the result of the derailment of the trailer of a train in Jamaica Plain train, inward-bound, at the Boylston street station of the Tremont street subway.

Traffic on the tracks handling cars from Huntington avenue, Boylston street and Commonwealth avenue was tied up for more than an hour.

Passengers left cars and walked, until Elevated employes got traffic moving slowly over a detour. Cars were routed from Boylston street surface, via Berkeley street, to the Broadway entrance of the subway, to the South End, as they would enter the subway on the outer set of tracks which were not affected by the derailment.

Traffic over these tracks, which

$100,000 ST. ALBANS FIRE THREATENS CITY

St. Albans, Vt., Feb. 3.—The heart of the business section of this city was threatened today by a fire in the department store of Harold Colson on Main street, which caused damage estimated at $100,000.

Four firemen were overcome by smoke. The family of Clifton Kelly, consisting of his wife, two children and his sister-in-law, were driven from their apartment above the store.

The department store is on the ground floor of a three-story brick block.

Fanned by a high wind the flames roared up through the building, and spread to the Twiggs block adjoining.

The firemen, called out by a general alarm, were handicapped by snow and dense smoke.

PROVIDENCE LINER CRETAN GOES ASHORE

Baltimore, Feb. 3.—The Merchants' & Miners' steamer Cretan, which sailed from Baltimore last night for Providence, was reported aground today two miles below Seven Foot Knoll, Chesapeake Bay.

The steamer was reported to be resting easily and it was expected she would be floated on a rising tide or a shift of wind.

The Cretan carried a cargo of miscellaneous freight, but no passengers. Officials of the company said she was in no danger.

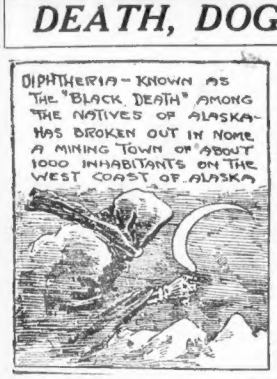
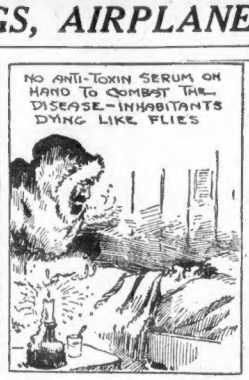
DEATH, DOGS, AIRPLANES AND SCIENCE -:- -:- By HAL COFFMAN



DIPHTHERIA - KNOWN AS THE "BLACK DEATH" AMONG THE NATIVES OF ALASKA - HAS BROKEN OUT IN NOME, A MINING TOWN OF ABOUT 1000 INHABITANTS ON THE WEST COAST OF ALASKA



The most thrilling race of many a day has been going on over the snow and ice of far off Alaska. A race against grim DEATH that threatens a town of over a thousand inhabitants was run by a sturdy "musher" and his dog-team, carrying the life-saving antitoxin serum to those diphtheria stricken pole. It takes a man and team from twelve to fifteen days to make the trip that properly equipped AIRPLANES could make in a FEW HOURS and undoubtedly save many lives. What airplanes there were on hand, however, were laid up for the Winter and it would have taken too long to put them in condition to fly. Meanwhile the champion dog-team driver of Alaska urged his "huskies" on through the frozen wilds. Don't forget PREPAREDNESS and AIRPLANES could have saved many lives before the dog-team could arrive. Think it over. HAL COFFMAN.

BEER BARRELS BURST IN COLD VERMONT AIR

White River Junction, Vt., Feb. 3.—The low temperature which prevailed here today caused the seizure of 140 barrels of Canadian beer consigned to a New York firm under the guise of scrap steel shavings.

The nature of the freight shipment was discovered in the railroad yards when some of the beer froze and burst the barrels, the tops of which contained layers of steel shavings.

The shipment has been returned to the United States Customs office at Newport.

Warned of Gales

New York, Feb. 3.—Shipping was warned today of gales along the Atlantic seaboard between Atlantic City and Cape Hatteras.

5-YEAR TERM IS SOUGHT FOR STOKES

Chicago, Feb. 3.—A five-year prison sentence will be asked by the prosecution in the trial tomorrow of W. E. D. Stokes, New York hotel owner, charged with conspiracy to defame the character of Helen Elwood Stokes of Denver, his former wife. The State will make no demands for fines, W. W. Smith and Milton D. Smith, assistant State's attorney, said.

The indictment of Stokes and Daniel Nugent, his New York attorney, grew out of alleged attempts to obtain testimony that Mrs. Stokes formerly was an habitue of a notorious resort here.

College Boy Thrives on 90 Minutes' Sleep Daily.

Huntington, West Va., Feb. 3.—"If you're sleeping more than an hour and a half each day, you're ruining yourself physically."

This startling statement came from Anderson Fry, of Princeton, West Va., a freshman student at Marshall College here, who has slept only ten hours a week for the past five years.

Sleeping more than ninety minutes a day he declares is a criminal waste of time.

"It's just as bad to oversleep as to overeat," he declared.

Fry apparently is in excellent physical condition. In the freshman mental tests he rated eight points above the average.

Anti-Tipping Bill Offered

Harrisburg, Penn., Feb. 3.—A bill designed to prevent tipping was presented in the Lower House of the Pennsylvania Legislature. A fine of $50 would be imposed for conviction.

FOOD AND FUEL FOR FAMINE VICTIMS

By DANIEL O'CONNELL.

Dublin, Feb. 3 (I.N.S.)—The Lady Dudley Nursing Association began sending oil stoves and oil to the famine districts of West Ireland today. Miss Jebb of the London "Save the Children Fund" has arrived here and will at once open relief centers for the stricken people.

The Irish Free State is purchasing old railroad ties and selling them for a pittance to the sufferers for fuel. The government also is supplying nets for fishermen who lost their own during the recent gales, but even with these nets the catches are very small, and fishermen are devoting their time to gathering periwinkles for the London market. Their profit from this industry is small.

BABES UNDERNOURISHED.

Depressing reports come from Galway. Travelers tell of shoeless children with hunger indelibly imprinted on their thin faces; mothers with babes at their breasts and showing signs of undernourishment, and depressed men, all unemployed, and living in miserable stone and sod-roofed hovels.

Death has not made any great inroads on these people, but many would welcome death, travelers said, rather than continue to endure the daily pangs of hunger and suffering from the cold.

One tiny hut houses a family of seven in two rooms. All day long they crouch about a pile of smouldering wet peat which gives off so little heat it could be picked up from the hearth.

WET PEAT AS FUEL.

Another cabin of two rooms holds a family of twelve who sleep in two beds on the flagstones of the hearth. Even the hovel-like homes of these people appear to add to their discomfort, for the rain-soaked sod roofs and stone walls hold moisture until the sun dries it out.

The daily fare in the famine districts consists of tea and bread for breakfast, tea and bread at midday, in the evening dry, unbuttered bread. Some of the families have a small store of bedwarfed potatoes, which represents their year's labor. These potatoes are harbored closely and are rationed carefully.

SECOND IN WEEK.

This derailment was the second within a week, the other also occurring on the inner system of subway tracks, between Boylston street and Park street stations. In both cases, cars destined for Park street looped on the emergency loop at Park street.

The tie-up today affected traffic on the Elevated system, from Lechmere square station, Cambridge, to Dorchester, Roxbury and Watertown.

Hobo Riding Rods Becomes Hero and Gets Free Pass

Muskogee, Okla., Feb. 3.—Bill Goodman of Nauvoo, Ala., erstwhile rider of the rods, today is entitled to "ride the cushions" on all trains of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Company. Bill is a hero.

Bill emerged from the seclusion of the "blind baggage" when the train he was riding collided with a switch engine. He dragged Engineer P. H. Dutton, who was stunned, from beneath his engine. Had he remained, Dutton would have been scalded by the water from a bursting boiler.

The pass was awarded today. But Bill says that he had rather mail the pass back to Nauvoo and beat his way home. He gets more "kick" out of it, he says.

DUEL STORY IS SCOUTED IN BOY'S DEATH

that Travelene frequently commented on the packages Statsky carried at early morning hours and expressed the intention of some time finding out what was in them.

DOUBT STORY OF DUEL.

The Statsky home had been raided for liquor three times within a year. On one occasion a barrel of ground oats was found, but not seized.

The police are not convinced Statsky was shot in the duel. They have been informed by the football player's father that he made two visits to his home after leaving there with Travelene. On the first visit he was noticeably excited. The father met him returning the second time and the youth was holding his wounded shoulder with one hand.

The police will examine the bullet that pierced Statsky's shoulder and also that which penetrated Travelene's heart to determine which of three revolvers figured in the affray.

When Travelene's body was discovered his hands were folded across his chest and a revolver rested on his body. Statsky carried two revolvers when arrested.

WARRANT FOR STATSKY.

The police scout the story told by Statsky that he shot Travelene when the latter held him up and robbed him of $13. The money was not found on Travelene's body. They say it is possible the youth was killed in cold blood. The wound in Statsky's shoulder could have been self inflicted, they say.

A warrant has been issued for Statsky, charging him with first degree murder.

The police have determined that Statsky had one of his mysterious packages with him when he left his home with Travelene. The package has not been located.

An autopsy will be performed on Travelene's body today and the bullet removed. It will be compared with the weapon found with the body, which contained three discharged cartridges.

The possibility that a third man figured in the alleged duel was called to the attention of the police today by Mrs. E. E. Dunlap, who declared she saw two men leaving the scene and the dark object which later proved to be Travelene's body, lying in the snow.

Mrs. Dunlap's home is on Bedford street, near the scene of the shooting. She said one of the pair she saw was shaking his arm, as though it was injured.

She sent one of her children out to see what the dark object on the snow was and it was then Travelene's body was discovered.

ROYAL EVENT TO COST U. S. GIRLS $5,000 EACH

London, Feb. 3. (I.N.S.)—There will be considerable financial astonishment among some 400 girls and women in the United States today when they learn that it will cost each one of them approximately $5,000 to be presented to the King this Spring. The 400 already have made application, but apparently overlooked the cost.

Both the applicants and the United States Embassy face an embarrassing situation. Ambassador Kellogg has 400 applications on hand and he has the privilege of presenting about forty.

HOUGHTON'S PROBLEM.

The problem is not worrying Kellogg because he will not be here for the presentation. He will be in Washington as the Secretary of State. The task of compiling the list, with charity to all and offence to none, will fall upon Ambassador Houghton who is coming here.

All claims to social distinction are passed upon by the Court Chamberlain, and, as he has emphasized, social distinction in America is not always a social distinction in England.

It is expensive business, being presented at court. The necessary gowns, white feathers for the hair, and other accoutrements may be purchased for about $1,500.

DANCING FEES.

Then there are fees to be paid the dancing mistresses who instruct in court manners prior to the presentation, and there are other expensive adjuncts. Any American father or husband who has to meet the expense may as well be reconciled to writing out a check for $5,000.

Miss Matilda Houghton, daughter of the ambassador-designate, was presented to the King last year. It is expected she will take charge of the debutantes who are to be presented this year and will instruct them in all of the graces and etiquette of such a formal and socially historic occasion.

glass two years ago while her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thompson, were residing in Dauphin, Manitoba.

She further asserted, the police claim, that she caused the death of a Mrs. Price, with whom she once lived, by administering rat poison to her.

"I guess I was just mean and liked to see them suffer," the child is said to have declared in admitting the poisonings. In speaking of the deaths of one of her little sisters, Alsa, showed a slight trace of emotion saying:

"She was so pretty. I was sorry I had given her anything."

The child is said to have frankly admitted that in addition to poisoning humans, she had poisoned two canaries and a cat.

GERMAN TRADE TREATY GIVEN COMMITTEE O. K.

Washington, Feb. 3.—A favorable report on the German commercial treaty, with reservations, was ordered today by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Congress would reserve the right after the first year to change provisions of the treaty relating to preferential tariff and rail rates upon 90-days' notice. The treaty would prohibit either country from discriminating in duties or rail rates on goods shipped on vessels flying its flag. Many Senators objected on the ground it would close the last door left open for government aid of the American Merchant Marine.

Nome, Alaska, Feb. 3.—Relief has at last reached this plague-swept Arctic outpost!

Completing what will ever remain one of the greatest epics of the Northland, Gunnar Kasson, famous musher, arrived with his dog team in diphtheria-stricken Nome shortly after daybreak. He brought 300,000 units of life-saving anti-toxin serum for the 150 victims of the disease that has held this ice-bound Alaskan outpost in its grip for over a week.

Gunnar Kasson was half dead from exhaustion and his panting dogs all but dropped in their tracks overcome by fatigue when the end of the trail was reached.

NAME ON ALL LIPS.

Kasson left two days ago to meet the mushing team of Leonard Seppala, world's champion dog derby racer, who was carrying the serum in the relay from Unalakleet across ice-bound Norton Sound to Nome.

The thirteen black Siberian malamutes owned by Kasson are the "heroes" of the hour—of course, not overlooking the intrepid driver, whose name is on everyone's lips.

Kasson brought in his team from Bluff, a distance of fifty-three miles, in seven and one-half hours in the face of a blinding snowstorm.

LAUDS LEAD DOG.

After coffee had been given him and he had thawed out, Kasson began telling his story of the trip. He said:

"I do not believe any dog other than my leader, Balto, could have brought the sled with the anti-toxin through such a night of storm as we—my thirteen dogs and myself—passed through last night.

"I could not see the trail or any markings myself, and it was only through Balto's leadership that we arrived when we did."

Kasson was insistent, as he prepared to take "a week's sleep" that credit for victory in the fight for humanity's sake belonged to big Balto. He repeated:

"I could not see the trail and trusted all to Balto, and Balto did not fail me."

GREETED BY DOCTOR.

The feat of Kasson and Seppalla in crossing frozen Norton sound from Unalakleet to Nome, distance of 150 miles, is considered marvelous. The great dog drivers saved many hours by cutting straight across the ice instead of skirting the shore line.

Kasson was greeted by Dr. Carter Welch, United States public health officer, who, single-handed, put up the wonderful fight against the ravages of the diphtheria plague, and Miss Emily M. Morgan of Wichita, Kan., Red Cross woman nurse in Nome, who rushed from a nearby Eskimo outpost to assist Dr. Welch.

Serum Not Affected by Freezing, Says Expert

New York, Feb. 3.—Freezing of the diphtheria anti-toxin that has been received in Nome has probably had no effect on it, according to Dr. William H. Park, director of laboratories of the board of health.

"The anti-toxin is probably as good as the day it started over the trail," Dr. Park said today.

First of New Serum Administered at Nome

Nome, Alaska, Feb. 3 (AP).—Whether an ally which would turn the scales in their favor in their battle against an epidemic of diphtheria or whether freezing had destroyed the value of the 300,000 units of antitoxin rushed here was the question facing Nome's one doctor and one nurse today as they awaited reactions from first injections of the serum.

The entire lot was frozen solid upon arrival, but a portion was thawed out and quickly administered.

No word has been received from Leonard Seppalla. The former Finnish athlete is expected to return slowly, resting at villages to feed his tired dogs, which bore the brunt of the entire race.

Another package of serum was shipped Saturday from Seattle on the steamship Alameda to Seward. From there it will travel to Nenana on the Alaska railroad and then by airplane to Nome. From Seward, Roy S. Darling, former navy flier, who is agent of the Department of Justice at Fairbanks, and his mechanician, Ralph T. Mackie of Anchorage, will in a few hours do with an airplane what it required days of heart-breaking toil for the dogs and drivers to accomplish.

More Serum Coming By Boat and Plane

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 2.—Commandant J. V. Chase of the Puget Sound Navy Yard, Bremerton, Wash., said he was instructed by the Navy Department to outfit the minesweeper Swallow for a voyage to the edge of an ice pack in the Bering Sea, where an airplane may be sent to Nome from the Swallow with diphtheria serum.

ACTRESS DYING, LEAPED FROM HOUSE AFIRE

Baltimore, Feb. 3.—Hannah O'Malley, an actress, is dying at Mercy Hospital here after leaping from the fourth story window of the Gordon Apartments when fire broke out in the building today.

Before plunging to the snow-filled yard, she warned other occupants of the apartment house, who made their way to safety by the fire escapes.

Her body was wrapped in a blanket by firemen, who carried her to the hospital, where it was found she had suffered a broken arm, lacerated scalp and internal injuries.

Miss O'Malley came to this city several weeks ago after an engagement at Garden Pier, Atlantic City.

PROTEST OF 'DRYS' WINS AT CALIFORNIA UNIVERSITY

Berkeley, Cal., Feb. 3.—Symposiums or one-sided debates have been ruled out of the University of California campus by President W. W. Campbell because of protests by religious organizations against the Open-California meeting in which one California debater upheld prohibition and two California students and the three from Oxford University gave wet arguments. It was under the English university system, in which any debater speaks on the side of the question most attractive to him.

EARL CARROLL BETTER, PHYSICIANS DECLARE

Baltimore, Feb. 3 (I.N.S.).—Earl Carroll, theatrical producer, whose production of "The Rat" made its debut here, was recovering from a heart attack at Johns Hopkins Hospital today. Carroll was stricken three hours before the rise of the curtain.

According to his secretary, Count Davies, excitement and overwork incident to the play were responsible for the producer's illness. Mrs. Carroll, who landed Sunday in New York from Europe, arrived here today to be at the bedside.

TWO HELD AS GUNMEN IN REVERE HOLDUP

Arthur Parenti of No. 13 Fairfield street, Revere, and Louis Gaeta, Ambassador Hotel, Lynn, pleaded not guilty in Chelsea Court today to the charge of robbery while armed of Harry Hoffman of No. 67 Campbell avenue, Revere, of $225. Hoffman was held up on Campbell avenue by three armed men. The descriptions he gave Patrolman Harry Garrity of Revere resulted in the arrest of Parenti and Gaeta. They were held in $10,000 each for a hearing a week from today.

BOARD TO PICK TIGER'S NAME TOMORROW

Twenty-two hundred and fifty letters, the first fruits of the Boston Evening American's contest to obtain a name for the new Bengal tiger at the Franklin Park Zoo, have been turned over to the Boston Park Commission.

The letters, each containing a suggestion from a Greater Boston school child, who hopes to earn the $10 prize offered by the American, were received by Mrs. Mary E. Donovan, Chairman James B. Shea and Deputy Commissioner William P. Long. The prize winning name will be announced tomorrow, it is expected.

Spread out on a huge table in one of the rooms of the Park Department the process of elimination was begun. Great weight was given by the examiners to the reasons given by the children for selecting the name submitted.

Many were disregarded because of bad writing and no definite reason given as to the name used.

Each name submitted was given careful consideration. Many of the children sent in the same name and the one that gave the best reasons for selecting was laid to one side for final decision.

Chairman Shea and Deputy Commissioner Long will cut the list to a final twenty-five names. These will be submitted tomorrow noon to the full board of commissioners at its regular weekly meeting for further elimination. They will select one name and announce their decision at once.

GARMENT WORKERS STRIKE IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Feb. 3 (I.N.S.).—Declaring that working conditions were reduced to an "unbearable level," 2,500 garment workers went on strike here today. The walkout included three locals of the International Ladies Garment Workers. The strikers demand re-establishment of the forty-four-hour week throughout the 100 factories in the city, acceptance of the principle of collective bargaining, including recognition of the union, and establishment of a joint board of sanitary control.

SAGE OF MOUNT TOM IS SENT BACK TO JAIL

Northampton, Feb. 3.—James W. Kehoe, sage of Mt. Tom, was arraigned in District Court for the eighty-eighth time. He was charged with breaking jail, pleaded guilty and was given a four months' sentence. This was suspended and he was sent to jail to complete a twelve months' sentence for drunkenness imposed last August.

TAXI DRIVERS IN PARLEY WITH EMPLOYERS

Although the taxicab drivers of a majority of the companies operating in Boston have voted almost unanimously in favor of striking, the drivers will remain at work pending further efforts to secure a wage adjustment that will avert the strike.

James F. Fitzgibbons, business agent of the Taxi Drivers' Local Union No. 124, is today conferring with the heads of the Town Taxi Company, Armstrong Taxi Company, the Fenway Company and Cummins Brothers, the principal concerns involved in the proposed strike.

Should no agreement be reached, a meeting of the members of the Teamsters' Joint Council will be held on Wednesday night to consider the strike call after which sanction for the strike will be sought from the Indianapolis headquarters of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America.

The union has presented a new agreement calling for a wage of $4.50 instead of the present wage of $4 for a nine-hour day, with 30 cents an hour for overtime, instead of the 25 cents now paid.

It is reported that the officers of the union do not expect to order strikes against all of these companies, as information had reached them to the effect that settlements on the terms of the Premier Company, will be effected with one large company if not more.

WOUNDED "VETS" TO PRESENT PLAY FRIDAY

Wounded veterans of Hospital No. 44, West Roxbury, will present their play, "Cafe de Paris," at the Chelsea Naval Hospital Friday evening. The play, staged under the direction of Miss Joy Higgins, was a success in its premiere at the Red Cross hut in West Roxbury. It was written by Miss Edna Hinchion, a former Boston Red Cross worker, and the cast includes James Byron, Bernard Smee, Thomas Green, Arthur Jones, George Beaulieu, Scott Smith, Arthur Lewis, Alexander J. Gillis, Charles H. Hinckley, Harry Hoyt, John Grady and Silvio McNeil. The veterans are being assisted in their preparation by Miss Dorothy Bacon and Miss Hulda Salter.

BROKER LOSES FIGHT ON EXCHANGE OUSTER

New York, Feb. 2.—The application of Nathan J. Miller, broker, for an injunction restraining his expulsion by the New York Stock Exchange pending outcome of litigation was denied today by Supreme Court Justice Wagner. The temporary injunction which had restrained the exchange from enforcing the expulsion order since last November was dissolved. Miller was expelled on the ground that he, Nathan Miller & Co., had been guilty of conduct inconsistent with equitable principles of trade.

REBELS IN HONDURAS CAPTURE A TOWN

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 3 (A.P.)—A recurrence of revolutionary troubles in the southern part of the Republic of Honduras, where peace was recently re-established and a new President inaugurated, is reported in advices reaching here. The reports state that General Gregorio Ferrera, the revolutionary leader, after a battle, captured Nacome, in the strip between the Nicaraguan and Salvadorean borders.

PRAYER BRINGS CHEER TO TRAPPED MAN

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Floyd Collins, thirty-five, is now lying on his back in a living tomb, but is standing nearly erect, much like a person in a dentist's chair, one of the would-be rescuers revealed today.

The huge sandstone block, which slipped and pinned one foot, fell just as Collins was attempting to straddle himself for a squeeze through an eight-inch passage ahead.

Rescuers today had arrived away small piles of stone and handfuls of mud until a passage had been cleared before Collins as far back as his knee. The debris was removed piece by piece through 150 feet of the cave tunnel where men crawl on their bellies all the way. The cave itself has been described as more of a sinkhole than a cavern.

Rain and dripping water drain incessantly from the mouth down into a tenfoot deep before striking the underground channel which pursues through ragged rocks at a decidedly downward angle. Mud and water constitute the floor of the tunnel.

All the men entering the cave have returned cut, bruised and water-soaked.

GRATEFUL FOR PRAYERS.

Lieutenant Robert Burden of the Louisville Fire Department said today that in making the entire distance to Collins he found bottles containing coffee and packages of food, all of which had been left in the cave by persons who never reached their goal. Nearly half a dozen bottles were found, he said.

Collins was still hopeful today that he would be taken out alive. Rescuers told him of each mechanical implement which had been rushed to the scene from Louisville, and of the efforts of various dedications to reach him from behind.

A telegram from Charles E. Feller of New York city was delivered 150 feet under ground to him.

"I am praying for you, old-timer; I'm betting your grit will pull you through," it read.

The prisoner said he was glad to get it and asked that his brothers send him a "gallon of milk and some sliced onions."

BEGINS TO SHOW STRAIN.

That was last night. Today the strain of nearly 100 hours of torture showed its effect. Collins begged his rescuers not to leave him alone. Tiny pieces of rock, seemingly too small to inflict pain, fell upon him the brought groans from the captive.

Physicians warned against further efforts to pull the cave explorer out by force, asserting that death from rupture probably would result.

Although worn by pain, loneliness and danger, Collins could live in his chamber two more days, Dr. C. W. Richards of Glasgow believes.

CAPTURE 'JACK THE HUGGER' IN DORCHESTER

tive, was captured after one of his alleged victims had marked him by biting him on the lip during a struggle resulting from his attempt to kiss her.

Following his arrest it is said a number of girls and women identified Julian as the man who accosted them while they were walking alone at night, hugged and kissed them and hurried away, laughing.

FOUGHT OFF BY GIRL.

The alleged offenses extend back beyond the first of the year, that on which he was arrested having occurred on January 9. On that date the Kalher woman, while walking on Geneva avenue, near her home, was accosted by a man who attempted to kiss her. She fought him off, and he fled. Later complaint was made to the police, who had been seeking the mysterious "Hugger" for some time. All the alleged kissings occurred in the vicinity of Field's Corner.

In Dorchester Court today Julian pleaded not guilty to attacking and beating Dorothy Kalher and was held in $400 bail for a hearing February 13. In the meantime Judge Churchill ordered his removal to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation.

Special Officer Cornelius Leary of Division 11, who prosecuted the case, said that if Julian goes to trial eleven additional complaints will be made against him. The complainant was not in court.

FLINT, AT 75, FORMING HIS 23D BIG COMPANY

New York, Feb. 3.—Charles S. Flint, 75-year-old banker, is engaged in his twenty-third large industrial merger, a $100,000,000 consolidation of West Virginia coal companies. This will bring to $500,000,000 the total capital of companies organized by him in 55 years.

Some of the larger companies credited to his efforts are the United States Rubber Company, the American Woolen Company, the American Chicle Company, Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Company, Somerset Coal Company, Computing-Tabulating-Recording Company and the National Starch Company, which later became a part of the Corn Products Company.

"Massachusetts, there she stands."

This is the answer made by local swains to the declaration of President Coolidge that Miss Vida Watson of Kansas is one of the most beautiful girls he has ever seen.

Massachusetts counters point with pride to Miss Bertha Keating of Springfield, a shining example of their contention that New England beauties are without peers.

From the rockbound shores of Maine to the sands of Narragansett, the beauty of New England's famed scenery is only exceeded by that of its women, they claim.

Compare the accompanying photographs and draw your own conclusions as to whether the feminine multitude of the Kansas wheat fields is superior to that of the old Bay State.

Pretty girls of New England are invited to send in their photographs or if you have a friend who is renowned for her beauty send her picture along for publication.

HOUSE TO GET WORLD COURT RESOLVE

Committee to Report It to Obtain Expression of Opinion on Proposal

Washington, Feb. 3.—A resolution to put the House on record as favoring American adherence to the World Court was approved today by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The resolution declared it had been the "traditional policy" of the United States to settle international disputes by arbitration. It favored the reservations recommended by President Harding and President Coolidge.

"This court, and its probable development," the resolution said, "promises a new order in which controversies between nations will be settled in an orderly way according to principles of right and justice."

The committee took the position that the House was entitled to express an opinion on a subject of such importance, though it does not, like the Senate, share in the responsibility for conducting the nation's foreign relations.

The resolution adopted in committee was a modification of proposals submitted by Representative Fish, Republican, New York, and Representative Moore, Democrat, Virginia.

CHALIAPIN IS HEARD AT BEST IN 'FAUST'

Presents Novel Interpretation of Gounod's Role of Mephistopheles

An audience crowding the Opera House to capacity witnessed the Chicago Opera Company's performance of Gounod's "Faust" with Chaliapin in the role of Mephistopheles, in which he has never before been seen in Boston.

Chaliapin proved to be everything expected of him. He realized fully all the possibilities of the character, and in addition he added his own brilliant interpretation of the role. His acting was the acme of realistic art. We have never listened to anything so diabolical as his laugh at the close of his serenade in the third act.

Chaliapin used his voice not for display, but to strengthen the characterization. He never hesitated in uttering a positively ugly tone, if that kind of tone would increase the illusion of what he was portraying. His acting and singing of Mephistopheles raised the opera from the rut of conventional love tragedy to a drama of sweeping power.

The rest of the performance was fine. Edith Mason was an almost ideal Marguerite. Her voice, which was in splendid condition, was admirably suited to the part. Charles Hackett as Faust was also well received. Gladys Swarthout as Siebel was cast in a role she is fitted for. Her singing was beautiful.

A new conductor, Frank St. Leger, was introduced to Boston. His reading of the score was brilliant.

Koussevitsky, as Guest of Sohier Welches, to Hear Mary Garden in Thais Tonight

Splendidly Appareiled Maids and Matrons Form Brilliant Coterie at Second Week's Opening Performance by Chicago Opera Company

By Betty Alden

MR. AND MRS. SOHIER WELCH ARE TO have M. Serge Koussevitsky in their Opera box this evening, when all the world of fashion will be out en masse to hear Garden in "Thais."

M. KOUSSEVITSKY has been in Washington with his Symphony players, and from all accounts coming up from our "Great Village Capital" the much lionized new leader of the Symphony and his matchless musicians made a tremendous hit.

SPEAKING OF THE musical celebrities now in our midst, Montemezzi, who wrote "The Love of Three Kings," will be in the stage box on Thursday evening at the Opera House, and the Chicago songsters and Boston's musical lights as well are all a twitter over the news.

AND STILL FURTHER along this line of musicianly personages, M. Polacco and Madame Polacco (Edith Mason) were dinner guests of Mrs. Fuller and His Excellency the Governor at their town house on Sunday last.

THE FULLERS HAVE for a number of Winters set up their town establishment in the magnificent Beacon street mansion that at one time was the home of the late William Draper, American Ambassador to Italy.

IT IS A STATELY pile, one of the handsomest private houses in that aristocratic thoroughfare where handsome homes are the rule.

MRS. FULLER was beautifully gowned and coated for the Opera last evening, in bronze and Oriental tones. Her guests in one of the centre boxes included the Governor's sister, Mrs. Halsey, and friends from New York.

MRS. GRAEME HAUGHTON'S box held a merry party of girls, chaperoned by Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno. Elizabeth Fenno, just back from Philadelphia, was in coral, Mrs. Fenno in mauve, and Betty Soule in shimmering green satin with deep fringe from the shoulders.

(Photograph by Bachrach.)

MRS. JAMES J. CABOT

She and Mr. Cabot and the little daughter, Jean, are established for the Winter at San Remo, in an Italian villa with a marvelous panorama of the Mediterranean spread out before it. Mrs. Cabot, before her marriage into the clan oft Cabot, was Catherine Rush, daughter of Captain Rush, U. S. N., and Mrs. Rush.

BARBARA FORBES, in white crepe with a fillet of brilliants in her dark hair, Eleanor Mason, in beaded crimson crepe, and Caroline Towle in gold lace over honey satin completed the sextet of buds, a handsome group and much admired in the promenade.

MRS. JOHN CHIPMAX GRAY had Mrs. Maynard Ladd in her box, near the brilliant horseshoe's centre. Mrs. Gray was in silver lace, beneath a wrap of mole, and Mrs. Ladd's scintillating gown of deep nadirix gleamed from a caracul wrap.

MRS. LADD IS ONE of Boston's notable artists who are draped to that happy duty of creating picturesque effects for the Fine Arts Ball, which is coming in the late February calendar, and will transform staid Horticultural Hall into a bit of Latin Quarter, for one evening at least.

MRS. GRAY FLAUNTED an enormous scarlet fan, one of the many gorgeous notes of color—crimson, bright blue and deep green—that made the Opera House such a sumptuous picture for the opening night of the second week.

THERE WERE NO MORE distinguished and beautifully gowned matrons in the whole notable assemblage than Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell and Mrs. Horace Binney.

THEY WERE THE observed of everyone as they held a little court just at the door of their box. Mrs. Binney was in peach satin done in crystals, and diamond ornaments blazed from the throat and smartly coiffed hair.

MRS. WHITWELL'S opera gown was a stunning affair of moiré green shot through with silver, and her hair was bound with a tiara-like bandeau of sparkling leaves.

THE FRANCIS SEARSES and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bramwell were in the B. H. Bristow Draper box, where Mr. Draper played the host, in the absence of Mrs. Draper.

MRS. SEARS WAS the usual handsome and unusually gotten-up young matron, and Mrs. Bramwell was in white.

MR. AND MRS. THEODORE FROTHINGHAM were of the group in Mrs. Richard Ely Daniel-son's box. Mrs. Danielson set off her distinguished personality in a gown of rose and gold brocade, and Mrs. Frothingham was charming and Greuze-like in creme satin, with deep bertha of antique lace.

AS FOR THE YOUNGER set, the buds and young girls and the younger married people—they made brave showing.

ELEANOR BATCHELDER, whose engagement to young Mr. Crocker was announced last week, was there, wearing a pretty frock of pale green satin.

ELEANOR IS THE SECOND in the trio of Batcheldor girls, whose brother, George, Jr., married Katharine Abbott, daughter of the Gordon Abbotts. She is, as well, a granddaughter on the distaff side of the late Colonel Lawrence of Medford, who was so largely a benefactor of the famous old colonial town, and whose mansion was for many years a show place there.

MRS. FREDERICK J. BRADLEE wore a taupe fur wrap over her beaded white crepe, and Mrs. Charles K. Cummings (Elizabeth Russell) was in black net with flaring skirt, with broad ermine stole.

MRS. DANIEL DeMENOCAL was in oriental tinted metal cloth. Mrs. DeMenocal is one of the Boston set which devotes much time to music, and of course may be counted upon to appear frequently during the Opera weeks.

MRS. GEORGE PUTNAM is another musically inclined matron, who was at the Opera Monday. Mrs. Putnam is one of the earnest workers who put on the series of concerts for children recently, an ambitious attempt to lead the young mind in the way it should go musically.

MRS. PUTNAM'S GOWN was a dull black crepe, with deep fringes at bodice and hem, and her jewels were pearls.

MRS. HOLLIS LIVERMORE donned one of her striking gowns, and wore with it a gorgeously embroidered shawl, of which there is seemingly an endless number in her wardrobe.

ANOTHER ULTRA-HANDSOME matron was Mrs. Pierpont Stackpole. She wore black velvet smartly designed, and with a deep flounce of ecru lace, an extremely chic affair.

OF THE MANY HANDSOME matrons glimpsed here and there in the famous horseshoe, Mrs. Curtis Guild, Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Mrs. Edward Jackson Holmes and Mrs. Edwin Farnham Greene were notably admired.

MRS. GREENE WAS in soft coral silk, and her opera wrap was of smoke gray velvet. Mrs. Goodrich wore a rose and gold brocade and bound her hair with a tiara of brilliants, and Mrs. Holmes was in silver cloth beneath a wrap of ermine.

IT IS THE FIRST time I have seen Mrs. Guild at the Opera, and handsome indeed was she. Her gown was of silvery-white metal cloth, and about the corsage were many of the jewels Mrs. Guild wore with formal ball and opera costume.

AS SHE ENTERED the Opera House she was enveloped from head to heel in a wrap of jade velvet, which had deep bandings of chinchilla, a garment of regal beauty.

PEGGY WARNER AND her mother, Mrs. Henry Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Moseley and their daughter, Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer and Theodora Ayer, Mrs. William Endicott Dexter and Sally Dexter, and Mrs. Brandegee and her daughter, Mrs. John Bolt, were glimpsed in their boxes or during the promenade.

MRS. BRANDEGEE WAS extremely distinguished in her gown of gold cloth with wrap of gold and black brocade, and Mrs. Bolt's wrap was done in Ming green and her gown was a pastel affair, one of those just-not-white tints so satisfying to one of her charming coloring.

MRS. ARTHUR J. RICHMOND looked the blithe Jessie Means of girlhood days (not so very far away, to be sure), in a French frock of black velvet with a design in roses about the hem.

MR. AND MRS. RICHMOND are not living in town this Winter, but have set up their household gods somewhere away in Springfield, if memory serves. Just near enough to allow them to dash back now and again for the Opera, or for the Senior Supper Dances, of which they are among the devotees.

I SAW THE SLENDER and brunette Harriet Royce, charming and bright-eyed, in a most becoming frock of pale honey yellow. Harriet is one of the young set, who has danced and frivoled through a season or two. She came out Winter before last, and like several of her mates, became engaged in her second season. But Cupid's dart did not lodge firmly, it seems, and Harriet is again heart-whole and fancy free, to judge by her radiant good looks and gay insouciant manner.

Tennis Players Are Baring Knees at Monte Carlo

Monte Carlo, Feb. 3.—Bare knees have appeared here among the women tennis players, who are wearing rolled stockings and skirts almost as short as bathing costumes.

The abbreviated skirt and plenty of "free room" add a lot to the play, the players say, and give much more freedom than formerly.

Skirts of the new tailor-made ensemble suits worn in Monte Carlo and Nice are also much shorter than even a few months ago, and tight. The skimpy skirt has come to stay, at least for this season, according to the idiots.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Evidence on which the Department of Justice has announced its purpose to bring new proceedings here in the case of Senator Wheeler of Montana was laid before a special Grand Jury today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court. The Wheeler case has revolved about Montana oil lands. A postal inspector was among those who entered the jury room.

PAIR OF RUBBERS BRINGS HIM TO GRIEF

A pair of rubbers today brought Arthur Brown of the South End a sojourn at the State farm when he appeared before Judge Zottoli. Brown insisted two companions visited a Washington street store and brought the rubbers out to him. Judge Zottoli placed the larceny charge on file. Because of other data relating to Brown in the hands of the police, he sent him to the farm.

New York, Feb. 3.—Nineteen Democratic members of Congress from New York have pledged their support to the organization which was formed to fight for the repeal of the Volstead act. More than 1,000 men and women attended the dinner at which the new organization was formed.

GIRL'S LETTER MAY END SUIT AGAINST BILLY VAN

New York, Feb. 3.—Did Miss Ray Myers, vaudeville ——, write a letter of "renunciation" to Billy B. Van, comedian, in a fit of depression or did she do it because she no longer believed he intended marry her?

On that question will determine whether or not Justice Faber dismisses the $100,000 breach of promise suit the girl brought against Van.

Van's attorneys moved to dismiss the suit after Miss Myers had testified she wrote the letter when she was in a highly nervous condition, following a scene with Van in a New York theatre over the attention he was paying Miss Grace Walsh, whom he later married.

Each year, fewer desks are vacant on stormy days. There is less sickness among children. The growing generation is the healthiest this country has ever known. The reason is that....

Every healthy child has a sensible mother

WRITTEN on the rosy cheeks of every healthy youngster is the message for all to read—"I have a sensible mother."

It is she who imposes the kindly tyranny of simple meals on time, of early to bed, dry shoes and stockings, warm underwear, rubbers, clean teeth.

All she asks for each twenty-four hour day of responsibility and loving care are sparkling eyes, ruddy cheeks, sturdy little bodies—the promise of useful, happy lives.

It is sensible mothers—health doctors every one—who have made Lifebuoy Health Soap the most widely used toilet soap in the world.

They know the creamy, antiseptic lather of Lifebuoy is a sure, every-day protection to child health. It gently removes from little hands germs which may cause colds or fevers. It keeps skin soft and radiant with health.

Sensible mothers—Lifebuoy is the health soap. Use it for the children's sake—before meals, after play or school and before going to bed.

Legislator Would Make Hypocrisy Misdemeanor

Albany, Feb. 3 (Universal)—Assemblyman Frederick L. Hackenburg, Democrat, New York City, introduced a bill making hypocrisy a misdemeanor, defining the offense as interfering with personal liberty for hire or profit.

"Hypocrisy is becoming as profitable and as prevalent as bootlegging," he said and added "It is time it was curbed.

"I would like to send to jail," said Assemblyman Hackenburg, "every professional faker who tries to make an easy living out of the tendency of some people to interfere in everybody's business."

WOMAN FIGHTS SHIPWRECK CLAIMS

Opposes Company's Plea That Damages Be Limited in North Star Case

An echo of the S. O. S. call of the Boston to Yarmouth liner North Star, which piled on the rocks in Yarmouth Harbor on August 8, 1919, with 500 passengers aboard, was heard in Federal District Court today when the steamship company sought to limit the damages claimed by a woman passenger.

Mrs. Mabel F. Dempsey of Bristol road, Somerville, who seeks $20,000, and her husband, Fred J. Dempsey, who asks $5,000, appeared to block the action.

The company asked that damages be limited to the total value of the vessel as she lies on the rocks. The Somerville couple declared in reply that their clai mis rightfully against the entire assets of the steamship company, charging that Captain L. F. Strout proceeded at full speed through a fog upon orders of the company's officials.

The arguments were taken under advisement. Mrs. Dempsey asks damages for injuries received when she was tossed fro man upper berth and her husband seeks payment for loss of her services.

RUDNICK SUIT FOR DIVORCE ON TRIAL

Testimony given in the uncontested annulment proceedings instituted last June by Joseph Rudnick, wealthy real estate operator, against Mollie Barron Rudnick was repeated today in the trial for his divorce suit in Probate Court.

Rudnick, who denied under cross-examination that he is worth $1,000,000, charges his wife, now under guardianship, with cruel and abusive treatment.

Following a long hearing last June, Rudnick's annulment petition, in which he charged the former Mollie Barron with having been of unsound mind when she married him, was dismissed.

In the present proceedings he based the cruelty charge on happenings during their honeymoon trip to California following the marriage in January of 1922. The real estate man said his wife's actions interfered with his sleep and caused him to lose his appetite.

Attorney Frank H. Stewart, representing Mrs. Rudnick's guardian, Joseph Barron, her brother, attempted to establish Rudnick's financial standing. The latter's counsel, Samuel L. Ballen, objected when Stewart asked Rudnick if he were not worth a million. Neither would Ballen admit his client is worth $500,000. Counsel were then called to the bench for conference.

GERMAN REFUNDING OF U. S. DEPOSITS STILL UNDECIDED

Berlin, Feb. 2.—The question of refunding American pre-war deposits in German banks is wholly within the jurisdiction of the Mixed Claims Commission and no decision has been reached, according to official quarters. A report in the German press that such deposits will be paid on the pre-war dollar basis is without foundation, it is stated. The German government, it is said, will accept the ruling of the commission at Washington and then make its own settlement with German banks. American creditors are advised to address inquiries to the commission in Washington.

PROSPERITY IS SEEN IN FAR EAST TRADE

Department of Commerce Shows Only China Is in Bad Way Financially

Washington, Feb. 2.—The year 1924 augurs well for many of the countries of the Far East, according to Julius Klein, director of foreign commerce for the Department of Commerce.

With the exception of China, which has been virtually wrecked by civil war, indications point to better business conditions, improved markets and higher prices for leading crops than during the last few years.

In Japan, too, the economic recovery has been retarded, partially by conditions in China and partly as a result of the slow recovery from the earthquake of 1923.

"Gradually, however, the Far East is beginning to recover from unfavorable post-war conditions," Klein said.

BUDGETS STABILIZED.

"Budgets of most of these countries are on a more stable basis, and surpluses are anticipated by several of them for the first time in a number of years."

The growing importance of the Far East to the business of the United States has led the Department of Commerce to make a detailed study of the financial condition of these countries.

In the budgets of the Far East certain factors are common to all the survey disclosed.

"With the possible exception of Japan, between 80 and 90 per cent. of the population is engaged in agricultural pursuits," Dr. Klein pointed out.

"The success of the harvests and the market demand for agricultural products affect the purchasing power of the people. Crop failures or adverse markets, or the two combined, seriously affect the revenues of the Governments. The post-war depression which stagnated business made itself apparent in the revenue returns of the various countries in diminished receipts from income, business and license taxes and from Government services and monopolies."

CURRENCY A FACTOR.

Another factor given as common to the budgets of several of the Far Eastern nations is currency. India, Ceylon, China and the Malay states are on a silver monetary basis, it was pointed out, their revenues and expenditures being influenced by the price of silver. A small rise in the gold value of silver will permit the payment of foreign commitments, to the advantage of the silver-using countries.

"The price of silver has, as a whole, declined since the early part of 1920.

"During the peak of prosperity in 1919 and early in 1920 extensive programs for public works were undertaken by most of the countries under review," Klein said. "These programs either had to be curtailed or completely given up after the depression set in, which naturally affected extraordinary expenditures."

Budget estimates in the Far East were said to be based upon conservative computation while the tendency is to underestimate revenues. Customs duties, direct taxation and receipts from Government services and monopolies including opium, salt and camphor, constitute the principal sources of ordinary revenue of the Far Eastern Governments.

Extraordinary revenue is obtained by the transfer of portions of the budget surpluses, when such exist, and from loans raised locally or abroad. Ordinary expenditures, the survey showed, are used for Government administration, while extraordinary expenditures are incurred for public works and naval and military purposes.

Baltimore Couple Pass Honeymoon in Police Patrol

Baltimore, Feb. 3.—Twenty minutes after Charles J. Manley, 24 years old, led his 19-year-old bride, Sophie, from the altar, they started on a honeymoon in a patrol wagon to the Southern police station.

Charles and the bridal party went to a houseboat, moored on the flats at Hanover street bridge.

Hardly had the party gotten underway when Sergeant Helmer of the Southern district received a complaint that "considerable noise" was issuing from the houseboat. The police went down, called the wagon and in it placed Charles, Sophie and all the rest.

JAP BILL BARS YANKEES FROM OWNING LAND

Washington, Feb. 3 (I.N.S.)—Restrictions on ownership of land in Japan by foreigners, which is proposed in a bill to be introduced in the Diet at the instance of the government, may create more diplomatic correspondence between the United States and Japan, it was learned today.

Under the proposed bill, land ownership rights would be accorded to foreign nations on a reciprocal basis. As some American States prohibit Japanese from owning, and in some cases from even leasing land, such a provision would be discriminatory against the United States.

Under the bill's provisions, it is reported, all Americans would be barred from owning property which would be discriminatory, as there is no Federal law prohibiting Japanese from owning property in this country. An amendment is projected, however, which would bar only citizens of those States which prohibit Japanese ownership.

The Japanese embassy has no official information concerning the bill, but it was said that if the bill passed carrying the State provision residents of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Kentucky, Minnesota, Missouri, Nevada, Alaska and the District of Columbia would be barred from owning land in Japan, as those States and Territories have alien land laws prohibiting Orientals from acquiring property.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Joicy Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ½ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

How "Off-Color" Teeth

Now are quickly restored to dazzling whiteness

A NEW method urged widely by leading authorities. Make this remarkable dental test. See what gleaming clearness is beneath the dingy film that clouds your teeth

DENTAL science now proves that dull, off-color teeth are a folly; that gleaming whiteness can be obtained with but little effort. New methods of tooth and gum beauty and protection have been found.

In a short time you can work a transformation on your teeth, can literally change your whole appearance.

Now a test is offered you—the most remarkable of all dental tests. Simply use the coupon.

It's only a dingy film

The reason your teeth look off color is that they are coated with a film and the method you now use fails to successfully remove that film. That is why, regardless of the care you take, your teeth remain dull and unattractive.

You can't see that film with your eyes. But run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel it—a viscous, slippery coating that absorbs discolorations, and clouds your teeth.

Remove it and you'll be amazed at what you find. You probably have beautiful teeth without realizing it.

Film, too, is charged with most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are a chief cause of pyorrhea and gum troubles.

New methods remove it. And Firm the Gums

Now new methods have been embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent, different in formula, action and effect from any other method.

Its action is to curdle film and harmlessly to remove it, then to firm the gums—no harsh grit dangerous to enamel.

Most of the sparkling, white teeth you see are due to it. Largely on dental advice, it has changed the teeth cleansing habits of the world.

Results are quick

Make the test. Then note results. Mark the glistening whiteness it brings; the beautiful polish and luster of your teeth. Clip the coupon before you forget.

JACK DEMPSEY CLEARS UP THE MYSTERY OF HIS EARLY LIFE

RING CHAMP HAS BLOOD OF 4 RACES IN VEINS

Did you know that Jack Dempsey is part Irish, Scotch, Jewish, Mormon and Cherokee Indian? That he is a blood relative of the famous Anne Hatfield, great feudist clan leader of the West Virginia mountains? That his father was a school teacher? Could you guess what he was thinking about when he hit Jess Willard that first famous body blow in Toledo? Or what flashed through his brain when Carpentier landed that equally famous blow on Dempsey's own jaw in Jersey City? The champion tells all about it in this chapter.

By JACK DEMPSEY
(As Told to W. B. Seabrook)

CHAPTER X.

There is a widespread idea that Jack Dempsey, having been at one time a hobo, tramp, almost what some people call a "bum," must, therefore, have come from the gutter, or at least from an illiterate and shiftless family at the bottom of the social scale.

He has finally confided to me the exact truth about his ancestry and the facts contain several interesting surprises.

He is a type that would be a hard puzzle for the most expert ethnologist. None of his pictures quite shows him as he really is and people who have only seen him in the fight ring get a wrong idea, or no idea at all, of what he is like outside it.

His eyes are large, well-shaped and of an extraordinarily luminous black. They are neither opaque, nor unlike and beady—which are frequently characteristics of very black eyes. They are simply a shining, flashing black. They are the kind of eyes that women admire and envy.

His hair is black, thick and coarse, but slightly wavy. His complexion and skin are dark, but not swarthy. His beard is a heavy blue-black, so that he has to be carefully shaved twice a day if he wants to keep his face quite smooth.

His voice is a great surprise. If it weren't for the virility behind it, it would be a tenor. It is, in fact, a sort of pleasant tenor-baritone that seldom drops below the middle register.

It may seem an absurd and idiotic thing to say about a champion heavyweight prize fighter—but there is a strong element of the feminine in Jack Dempsey.

Ignorant people may laugh at this, until they understand exactly what I mean.

"Feminine" has nothing to do with "effeminate."

100 PER CENT MAN.

Jack Dempsey is one hundred per cent. he-man, if there ever was one on earth—but every man is born of a father and a mother, and inherits certain characteristics from each. Some of the strongest men and greatest fighters in the world's history have taken their best characteristics from the mother's side. Alexander the Great derived most of his driving power from his mother, Olympia, and William the Conqueror, from Bertha.

It is only in this sense that I mean there is a feminine element in Jack Dempsey's personality. It doesn't detract from masculine strength. It simply adds something to it. It has nothing to do with "sex" or psychoanalysis.

It means that Dempsey, when he isn't fighting, is a gentle and amiable person. It means that instead of having a deep and rough voice, he has a voice that is pleasantly modulated. And it means that when he is in action his movements have the agility and smoothness and grace and lightning quickness of a cat rather than the lumbering ferocity of a wild bull.

The other night I got Jack Dempsey started talking about his ancestry, birth, family and early childhood. I had tried him on it several times before but he always pushed the topic aside.

On this particular evening he came back to the hotel, about 10 o'clock, all tricked out in evening clothes and looking like a model for a fashion-plate. He has a good tailor. He wears evening clothes well and they become him. He had been acting as best man at a wedding.

One of the best ways to start Jack Dempsey talking is to "kid" him good-naturedly, and I said:

"Well, Jack, you couldn't very well ride the rods of a freight train in that get-up. Your old hobo friends would never know you in it, would they?"

The champion's most interesting answers are frequently indirect. He replied nothing at all, but it was evident he was revolving something in his mind, and in a minute or two he went over to a side table, rummaged in a pile of newspapers and picked out a rotogravure section, tore a picture out of it and brought it to show me.

A GIRL AND A CAT.

It was the picture of a pretty girl, ten or twelve years old, holding in her arms an enormous striped tomcat, battle-scarred, with one of its ears half chewed off, evidently the hero of many a back-alley battle. It was, in fact, a typical tough "alley-cat," but a fine specimen.

The caption underneath it, nearly as I can remember, read:

"An armful of hobo prize winner. Violet Osborne with her 23-pound entry, Jack Dempsey, which took first prize in the heavyweight class in the tenth annual 'Mutt Show' in Philadelphia. He was named for the champion because of his spectacular rise from the gutter."

I looked at Jack Dempsey in his perfect-fitting evening clothes, and I looked at the picture of his alley-against it, were three or four little wooden steps.

cat namesake, and I wondered what the champion was going to say. This is what he said in the course of the next hour:

"The hobo stuff's true, and I'm not ashamed of it, but the gutter stuff is not so good—and it's not true, either.

BARRED FROM FIGHT.

"When I first came East, I didn't care what they said about me. What's the use? I must have looked pretty tough at that. I had yellow shoes with box toes, scuffed out at the end, and a twelve-dollar mail-order suit and a greasy wide-brimmed hat—and you know about what I look like when I'm not shaved, and Jack Price didn't look much better, and we hung out in a fifty-cent room in a dirty little hotel and ate in the backs of saloons—and the best anybody had to say of me was: 'Well, he's a bum and he don't know a d—d thing about boxing, but he can fight.'

"Even after I had fought Andy Anderson and John Lester Johnson they didn't think so much of me. The night of the big Morgan-Dillon fight in Brooklyn, I went over, hoping they would let me in. They took one look at me and told me to beat it, and I sat outside on a coal pile waiting until it was over.

"Then I began to win a few fights out West and people began to say 'Who is this fellow Dempsey, where did he come from?' Most of the sport writers said I was a hobo and a bum and a coal miner, who had come from Colorado and let it go at that.

"But Masterson, who was writing on the New York Telegraph, pulled the prize one. He wrote a long piece one day, 'solving the mystery,' as he said. He said he had found out all about it. He said my name wasn't Dempsey at all—that I was a foreign Jew from some low waterfront town on the Mediterranean, and that my real name was Julius Shinsky. I don't know who told Bat Masterson that story, but he never would believe anything else. He believed it till he died.

"People used to ask me if I was a Jew, and I used to laugh and say 'Well, what if I am? That's as good a thing to be proud of as anything else.'

THE INDIAN SIGN.

"Another guy put out a story on me that I was a full-blooded Cherokee Indian. I didn't bother to deny that, either. I said, 'Well, then, all right, I'm a hundred per cent. American.'

"But now that things are sort of different, I guess it might be a good idea to tell you all about it — including some things that have never been told. The gutter stuff gets under my skin sometimes. I wasn't born in any palace and my great grandmother was no society lady. I'm not going to dig up any aristocratic ancestors to lie about. That would be a joke. I'm just going to tell you the plain truth.

"My father was not a Westerner, at all. He came from the mountains of West Virginia. And you'll know about what kind of people he came from when I tell you that his uncle was old Anse Hatfield, the famous feud leader of the Hatfield clan that had a family war on the McCoy clan. Yes, I'm descended by my father's side from that old feud crowd and pop used to tell me feud stories that would make your hair stand on end, when I was a kid.

"Those people, you know, held some important jobs and had property in West Virginia. My father and grandfather were not directly mixed up in the feud stuff, but they were of the same crowd.

"My grandfather, Anderson Dempsey, was County Surveyor at Holden, W. Va. My father was a school teacher and did some farming, too. He had a hundred acres or so of land outside Holden. It wasn't worth much then, but we would have all been rich if he had stayed there, for there are big coal mines on that same land now.

"But my father wasn't the kind to stay put. He was a pioneer and rover by nature. He married Mary I. Smoot—yes, she was a member of the Mormon Smoot family. It's one of the big Mormon names—and some of her people told him of the wonderful chances out West, so he decided to migrate and that's how the family got out to Colorado.

"Of course, I was born quite a while after they left West Virginia. I was born in Manassa, Colo., and lived there until I was about eight.

SCOTCH-IRISH-JEWISH STOCK.

"On both sides of the family, it goes back mostly to Irish and Scotch, but there's some other blood in me, too. It's funny sometimes that the biggest lies have a speck of truth in 'em. Two or three years ago, out seeing my mother in Salt Lake City, I told her about that story Bat Masterson printed about my being Jewish, and she said, 'Well, William Harrison, maybe you don't know it, but you have got a little bit of Jewish in you, and I reckon somebody was smart enough to see it.'

"I said, 'How?' And she said, 'Well, according to what I've been told, there was a great grandfather on my side of the family by the name of Jacob Levy, who was full-blooded Hebrew—a good man that the family was well proud of in his time.' She told me, too, that there was supposed to be a streak of Cherokee blood in the family somewhere a long time back, but she didn't know whether that was true, or just a story.

"So I guess that makes me part Irish, part Scotch, part Jewish, part Cherokee Indian, and part Mormon—if you want to look at it that way.

"But I started to tell you about where I was born, near Manassa, Colo. What's the first thing I can remember? Well, maybe you'll laugh when I tell you. You know, Manassa's a rough, mountain country. Our yard wasn't level. It dropped down at the back, and at one place, beside the house, built think at all most of the time.

FRENCH MAGIC MAKING.

"You remember, Carpentier and Deschamps did a lot of their training there. Well, the first thing I remember on earth is sitting on those steps, eating a big slice of bread spread over with butter and brown sugar. I remember Montrose a lot better, where we moved when I was about five or six. But there's one thing I remember about Manassa that I've got to tell you.

"It must have been when I was about five or six. This was rough country, you know, down near the New Mexico line. One day my father and another man were going up the side of the mountain a little way after wood, and they let me tag along. All of a sudden we heard something crying like a baby, and there on the ground, when we went to see, were two little bear cubs—grizzlies—the cutest things you ever saw. They were whimpering, but not very loud, like puppies.

"The man wanted to take one along, but my father said, 'Don't go near 'em. Let 'em alone. Come on away.' But the man had to pick one up, and the minute he touched it, it began to screech and yowl so you could hear it all through the woods. 'Hey, drop it,' yelled my father, and about, that time we heard the big one coming like a crazy express train, roaring and loping down the mountain side, through the brush, lickety-split.

"My father grabbed me by the arm, and the other man dropped the cub and we started to run, and pretty soon my father swung me up through the air and carried me and kept on running. The big one must have stopped to look after its cubs, for we got away all right, and I remember it now so well because it was the first time I was ever really scared of anything.

"Speaking of going after wood reminds me that one of the first things I ever learned to do was to swing an axe, and I still like it just as well as playing golf, and it takes just as much skill to do it right.

FELLING A TREE.

"I thought about that in a funny way during the fight with Jess Willard in Toledo, when I won the championship. Nobody would believe the thing a man thinks of sometimes when he's fighting. You don't exactly think of them either. They just come out of nothing, like flashes.

"You know when you're cutting down a big tree, there's always a point long before it starts to crash over, when you can tell by the feel of the axe against the wood that after a while she's going to drop. And you say to yourself, 'About fifty more strokes and she'll crash.'

"If you saw that fight, you will remember that the first real blow I hit him was in the body, just below the heart. I don't know whether the experts at the ringside knew it — but I knew it — that I had put everything I had behind that punch. I could do that much again, a lot of times, if I had to, but I couldn't do any more.

"And what happened? Any man near my own size and weight would have gone down. Willard didn't go down. He didn't even go back. He gave a sort of grunt and took it flat-footed without even being thrown off his balance.

THE TREE TOTTERS.

"But that same second, when my glove was still against his body, I felt something—and through my mind like a flash out of nothing, came that feel of the axe against a tree that is going to fall. It isn't a trembling, and it isn't a tottering. I don't know what it is, but any man who has ever chopped down big trees will know. It's more like a slump and a shiver.

"All right, people have often asked me what a man thinks about when he's fighting—what I think about in the ring. I couldn't tell 'em to save my life. I don't believe you, until the very last, in secrets. You remember everybody said he was as fast as lightning, and that he had some trick knockout punches never seen in an American ring before. They made it sound like rabbit-foot mag'c.

"It's punches and I didn't easily fall for the magic, and talk about trick punches is sort of foolish—yet those things leave an impression on your mind. I had learned that without any bunk, Carpentier was as fast as a streak, maybe faster than I was, so I figured that whatever his punches were he'd be able to land some of them on me.

(In the next chapter, Jack Dempsey will tell the story of his "engagement to Mae Devereaux, the beautiful dancer, who had the same boxing trainer he had, and who knocked out two Follies girls in the Fifty-Fifty Club on Broadway).

FIREBUG BANDIT GANG HUNTED IN LAWRENCE

Robbers Cover Up Tracks by Setting Looted Places Ablaze

Lawrence, Feb. 3.—A robber band which uses incendiarism to cover its tracks, and which is believed to be responsible for an epidemic of fires, is being sought by State and local police.

Fire Chief Francis J. Morris has reported to the State fire marshal's office the fact that thefts occurred in at least six cases where fires of suspicious origin broke out.

Evidence seems to show that stores were first looted, and then set afire, the thieves in almost all cases confining their activities to men's high-class haberdasheries.

In the store of Fred S. Bstany at No. 46 Lawrence street, silk shirts valued at $72 were taken, either before or after a fire. When Klein's department store was destroyed by flames a few days ago, shirts were also among the missing articles.

Some weeks ago a Broadway concern suffered from a fire that threatened tenement property above it. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin, and a large number of articles were missing. It was apparent, according to the authorities, that the thieves had pillaged the place and then set fire to it.

In other cases it is thought that possibly the thieves worked while firemen were fighting the flames.

TEXTILE STRIKE DECISION DUE TONIGHT

Fall River Council to Act as Walkouts Spread in Bay State

With the Greenhalgh Mills at Pawtucket, R. I., completely shut down as a result of a strike of a majority of the employes, the Fall River Textile Council meets tonight to determine the question of a general strike at the Lincoln Mills in Fall River.

The owners of the Greenhalgh Mills have announced that they will not attempt to reopen their mills by employing strike breakers, but will keep the mills closed indefinitely.

No general strike has yet been called in any of the textile industries in New England, over the general wage cuts, but such action would not be surprising if announced at any moment.

At the Lincoln Mills there are 600 weavers on strike and the question to be decided tonight is whether or not the other workers will join in a sympathetic strike. The mill slash tenders already have voted on the question, but the result of their vote has not been announced.

The dofters employed at the Hadley division of the American Thread Company in Holyoke have joined the strikers in protest over the recent wage cuts.

At Chicopee the loom fixers at the Dwight Manufacturing Company have joined the striking millers, having refused to work with non-union weavers who are on the job in place of the strikers.

With a large number of strikes in progress or about to be called through the textile industries, mills continue to announce wage reductions throughout New England.

Notice of a 10 per cent wage cut have been posted in the Acadia Mills at Lawrence, where about 600 persons are employed. The cut becomes effective on February 9.

SEEK LAST COMPROMISE AT OPIUM PARLEY

Geneva, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—A lengthy session today of the joint commission of the two opium conferences failed to result in any agreement on the problem of suppression of opium smoking in the Far East—the principal sticking point in the long-drawn-out conference to date.

On motion of Augero Betancourt of Cuba, a subcommittee was appointed to make a last attempt to compromise on the conflicting views of the United States and those of Great Britain and some of the other European powers.

AGRICULTURAL BILL TO FORM COOLIDGE PLAN

Washington, Feb. 3.—The House Agriculture Committee decided today to have drawn up a bill embodying the recommendations of President Coolidge's agricultural conference to contain all suggestions except those relating to the tariff. This action was taken to give the committee a basis from which to proceed. Chairman Haugen announced he proposed to introduce within a few days a grain export bill similar to one introduced last week in the Senate by Senator McNary.

TRAIN HURLS AUTO IN SNOW AND OPERATOR DRIVES OFF

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 3.—Stalled today on the Baltimore-Central railway tracks, hit by a train, thrown into a snowdrift, pulling his machine back to the roadway and driving away unhurt is the record of P. A. Marshall of this city.

Proud Mother at Franklin Park Jealously Guards Offspring

Mary Ann is today the proud mother of a thirty-five-pound bouncing—we should say romping baby, and we can't say whether it is a boy or a girl.

Mary is a member of the American Bison family, heard so much about in "The Covered Wagon." The bisons make very jealous mothers and will let no one approach their young, not even Curator Harkins of Franklin Park Zoo, whose guest Mary Ann is.

Mary Ann came to Boston from Corbin Park, N. H. The father of the new addition to the Franklin Park herd is Worcester, who came here from the city in the western part of the State of that name.

A similar happy event brought parental joy to Mary Ellen, also of the Franklin Park herd, two weeks ago. Her offspring also weighed thirty-five pounds and hasn't been named yet for the same reason.

And, hush—Worcester, whose ancestors probably roamed about Salt Lake City before Brigham Young, is also father of Mary Ellen's young hopeful.

5 KILLED IN "NO WAR" FIGHT IN THESSALY

London, Feb. 2 (I.N.S.).—Five persons, Communists and police, were killed, four were wounded and many Communists were arrested today at Trikala, a Greek town in Thessaly, when Communists staged a demonstration in opposition to Greece going to war, according to a dispatch to the Central News.

The Communists went to police headquarters, the postoffice and other public buildings and broke windows.

U. S. DEBT INCREASES TO $31,051,159,000

Washington, Feb. 2 (I.N.S.).—The public debt of the United States increased $75,527,000 in January as a result of the December 15 funding operation, the Treasury Department announced today. The total debt January 31 was $31,051,159,000. A reduction is expected in February with the retirement of $118,000,000 4 per cent. circulation bonds on which interest ceased yesterday.

COOLIDGE TO CALL SENATE ON MARCH 4

Washington, Feb. 2.—The Senate will be called in extra session as usual on March 4 by President Coolidge. Study of the question of calling such a session to confirm Cabinet nominations has shown that it has been the universal practice and in his opinion it should be continued.

RUM RAID MARS GAYETY OF SHIP WEDDING

Dry Sleuths Dump Beer Overboard as Dutch Captain Marries Countrywoman

The wedding aboard the Dutch steamship Rijn, of the steamer's captain, Cornelius P. Pluggs and Miss Wilhelmina A. Timmermans of France, was a success, but Uncle Sam's sleuths didn't add anything to the festive occasion.

An hour or two before the ceremony was performed at the ship's berth at Pier 1, South Boston, federal agents appeared aboard and a short time later dumped forty gallons of foaming German beer into the harbor.

BOTH HOLLANDERS.

The beer was for the crew. It was a dry greeting they extended their skipper and his bride, as the bridal party left the ship for a wedding dinner ashore.

The bride is a native of Holland, as is Captain Pluggs. She is touring the world with two women companions and came to Boston from Florida for the ceremony.

Captain Pluggs will sail from Boston on Wednesday and his bride will resume her jaunt about the world. The bridal couple will meet again in the Dutch East Indies in March.

DUTCH CONSUL BEST MAN.

The romance which culminated in the wedding, was started in France, where Captain Pluggs met Miss Timmermans through mutual friends.

recently, an election of directors the couple met again in an English port and had its culmination when the nuptial knot was tied at East Boston by Charles Kaufman, tenacity public and New England passenger agent of the North German Lloyd line. The best man was Johannes H. Reuss, Dutch consul in Boston while Mrs. C. H. Noe, the bride's traveling companion was bride's maid.

World to End Friday! 'Reformers' Will Wait Calmly

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 3.—Followers of Mrs. Margaret W. Rowan, whose prediction that next Friday would mark the end of the world has stirred up commotion in "Reformed" circles throughout the country, will await the fulfillment of the prophecy calmly in their homes, it was announced at Mrs. Rowan's home today.

"No preparations are being made, nor are any religious services planned," said Mrs. B. E. Fallmer.

"Mrs. Rowan has given her message and we have faith that her vision will be fulfilled."

WARNS FITCHBURG OF WATER FAMINE

Fitchburg, Feb. [illegible] a threatened water shortage, Commissioner David A. Hartwell of the Public Works Department today recommended to the City Council speedy action on a project for a $350,000 reservoir. The normal supply of water in the municipal reservoirs is 1,314,400,000 gallons, the commissioner said, but today only 473,600,000 gallons are available. The supply, with normal rainfall, will be insufficient for the Spring and Summer, he warned. He requested the City Council to prohibit the use of water motors for ventilation in public schools to eliminate an "extravagant waste of water" and advocated substitution of electric motors to operate the fans.

FORD'S SHOALS OFFER STIRS SENATE

Washington, Feb. 3.—Henry Ford's offer of virtual partnership in government operation of the great nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals, made in response to a letter from W. R. Hearst, fell like a bombshell today into the deliberations of the Senate and House conferees charged with deciding the fate of the $140,000,000 government property.

It was authoritatively stated that the Underwood bill will be so modified in conference that it is hoped Mr. Ford will find it worth his while to renew his original offer, withdrawn in October, or submit a substitute bid.

The conferees representing the House, which passed a Ford bill last Spring, are standing pat for modifying the Underwood bill to be identical with the House measure. It is then planned to ask the President to call on Mr. Ford as a patriotic duty to help the government get rid of the Shoals.

The value of Ford's patriotic offer of service to the government is emphasized by Senators Howell, Simmons, McNary and Smith of South Carolina.

Sen. Underwood, Ala., declared "Ford's suggestions have come too late, as the case is foreclosed. Had they been offered before the Senate acted on the question of disposing of Muscle Shoals they would have been given due consideration. The conferees cannot take them into account nor can they make it possible to carry out the Ford proposals by making changes in the bills before them. Under the rules, they are restricted to consider only the subject matter contained in the bill which passed the two Houses.

KEITH'S PROGRAM OVERFLOWS WITH STARS

Poodles Hanneford, the equestrian comedian, always a favorite in Boston, was the feature of an excellent bill presented at Keith's last evening. His acrobatic antics on and off a galloping horse were indeed funny.

'NEW BROOMS' FILLED WITH GOOD COMEDY

Frank Craven again has achieved success in his latest comedy, "New Brooms," in which he plays the lead ing role at the New Park Theatre.

"New Brooms" sweeps away the blues and turns grouches into regular fellows. It is a worthy successor to Mr. Craven's "The First Year" and "Too Many Cooks."

Mr. Craven, responding to the insistent applause of the first night audience, explained that he had been forced out of retirement to play the leading role because of the illness of the younger actor whom he had engaged to fill it. Sympathy for the younger actor was merely polite.

Those who like to have others share laughs they have enjoyed will wish that Craven has much difficulty in finding a suitble substitute.

It is too good a comedy to spoil by revealing what transpires. It may add to prospective enjoyment of the play, however, to mention that a charming love interest is worked into the situations.

BOSTON MANUFACTURER OF TIGHTS IN DEMAND

Is there a manufacturer of tights in Boston? If so, he will doubtless be appealed to by the representative of "I'll Say She Is," coming to the Majestic next Monday. The manager of the show, which is now at the Casino, New York, has written the Hub office agent in Boston to get in touch with a tights manufacturer instantly in case of emergency.

It seems that an order for seventy-five pairs of tights for the chorus girls was placed in New York last week but the factory had a fire and there is some doubt that the order can be filled. So the chorus has been ordered to assemble at the Majestic Monday morning at 11 o'clock for measurements and try-ons for those girls who are minus the necessary articles when the production reaches Boston.

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS IN "THE FLIRTING FLAPPER"

Howard Blair, appearing in Somerville for the first time as a female impersonator, was the central figure in "The Flirting Flapper" at the Somerville Theatre yesterday. Allen Leiber is the author of the play, while Mr. Blair himself is responsible for the music and lyrics. "The Flirting Flapper" is a laughable farce in three acts, and needless to say, the clever work of the Somerville Players is an important factor in its success.

"DARK ANGEL" AT WILBUR DRAMA OF LOVE AND WAR

"The Dark Angel" at the Wilbur has plot enough and is well enough played to even justify reviving the war for an evening, and that is something of a compliment.

A well filled house last evening thought so highly of the piece that the cast was called to the curtain six times at the end of the second act.

Wins Boston Hearts

BESSIE LOVE

Diminutive movie star, who plays lead in "The Lost World," captivated her audience when she appeared on the Tremont Temple stage during the premiere of the Conan Doyle film. She later gave a radio talk describing her work in filming the picture.

Pretty little Bessie Love, movie star of First National Pictures—a charming, unaffected chummy little miss still in her 'teens, was tendered a tremendous reception at Tremont Temple last night when "The Lost World," the big motion picture spectacle in which the diminutive Los Angeles girl is starred, was presented in its world's premiere before a capacity audience.

The dainty little actress whose piquant beauty, grace and "homey" personality; have won for her a place among the five most popular female stars of the screen, came to share with the Boston public the privilege of witnessing the famous picturization of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's gripping story, the handiwork of that master of motion picture production, Earl Hudson, president of First National Pictures.

Fifteen minutes after she alighted at the Back Bay station, Miss Love had endeared herself to a group of Boston newspaper interviewers. In her suite at the Copley-Plaza Miss Bessie entertained a large group of the reporters and cameramen.

The young star brought her ukelele along with her and when "her gang" was seated, she sang several popular songs in a sweet soprano voice, strumming her accompaniment on the beloved "uke."

Then she was off for her first look at Boston. She talked over the radio describing her work in the filming of "The Lost World" and expressing her delight that Boston was privileged to have the first glimpse of the great cinema spectacle.

"HE WHO GETS SLAPPED" MOVES TO LOEW'S STATE

"He Who Gets Slapped," one of the outstanding pictures of the year, with every mark of distinction and quality that is perfect, was the principal feature of the program at Loew's State Theatre yesterday. It is a picture with few equals and certainly no superior. The story centers about a noted scientist whose life work and wife are taken from him by a man who was supposed to be his best friend. Despondent, the scientist joins a circus as a clown.

Lon Chaney as the clown, Norma Shearer as the girl of the story and John Gilbert as the young circus rider give superb interpretations of their respective roles.

MARION DAVIES STARS IN ORPHEUM FILM

Marion Davies returned to the local screen yesterday at the Orpheum Theatre, appearing in "Janice Meredith," a picturization of Paul Leicester Ford's popular romance of the American Revolution.

The picture is an ideal entertainment for both young and old, who not only like an exciting tale, but who believe in the traditions and future of America. It depicts most accurately many epocal events of the American Revolution

CHILD OF SEVEN HELD FOR POISON ATTEMPT

Los Angeles, Feb. 3.—Seven-year-old Alta Thompson was under observation at the psychopathic ward of the General Hospital today after an attempt to kill members of the family where she was boarding. The child is accused of mixing an paste and acid from a radio battery and attempting to induce several persons to eat it. When they refused, she attacked Maxine Platts, aged six, and slashed her wrists with a safety razor blade. Officers said the child explained, "I guess I did it because I am so mean."

GIRL CHARGED WITH STEALING KIN'S $415

Twenty-one-year-old Ethel Eastman, a petite blonde, needed clothes, with the result that she was arrested for the larceny of $415 from her stepfather, Harry Norman, of No. 94 West Brookline street. After nearly a month's search, the girl was found on Tremont street, while walking with her sweetheart. The young woman said she bought clothing, including fur coat, and went to Maine for a short time.

Scalded to Death

Wallingford, Ct., Feb. 2.—Jean Griffin, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Griffin, died from burns received when, sitting near a kitchen stove, she pulled a kettle of boiling water over her.

A. CONAN DOYLE FILM ABOUNDS IN THRILLS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

One thing is dead certain — Conan Doyle is always interesting. Whether his fancy takes flight into the future or recedes into a dim, distant and unfathomable past he gives full measure. You may now join Sir Arthur's class in natural history at Tremont Temple, where you will discover in "The Lost World" the most engrossing film of many months—as gripping as any story that has flickered on the screen in seasons of ambitious effort.

As the wonders of "The Lost World" flashed through reel after reel you wondered why some enterprising genius of early days in filmdom had not seized upon this sizzling, terrifying story years ago. There is mutual advantage in the delay, however, for the grim spectacle of meeting face to face the awe inspiring dinosaurus of 10,000,000 years ago hardly could have been accomplished without the aid of the modern cinema laboratory.

THRILL AND ROMANCE.

The thrill and romance of Mr. Doyle's magnificent story was made doubly intense and eye filling by the perfection of its photography, by the gorgeousness of its settings and by the hundreds of queer, skipping monsters of ages long past and forgotten. As cited in the best of First National Style, "The Lost World" proved an enlivening mixture of good old drama and extraordinary photoplay mechanics.

"The Lost World" concerns the past—a prehistoric age. That point is particularly emphasized now that Mr. Doyle is reaching a long arm into the hereafter. A man not too abstemious in his habits, seeing "The Lost World" for the first time might be excused for believing he was going through something of a new edition of "Alice in Wonderland" for bigger boys and girls. For here you meet the brontosaurus, the pterodactyl, the diplodocus and the triceratops; you see Lewis Stone, stern and solemn, frisking with these creatures, and Wallace Beery, hidden behind a fullish beard, glowing bitterly; Bessie Love shrinks from them and Lloyd Hughes, good, old heroic Lloyd, goes right out and offers them bloody battle. And there's your drama.

IMPOSING SPECTACLE.

In this order a scientific expedition penetrated the hidden mysteries of the upper Amazon and came back with the best novel of its day, which in turn was made into an imposing picture spectacle that will more than hold its own in any screen company. "The Lost World" is not entirely scientific, nor is it completely melodramatic.. There is a ripple of comedy running the entire distance—high spirited comedy—that keeps step with some particularly smart sub-titles. For the adaption and titles, Marion Fairfax is given proper credit on the program. She turned in a thorough job. The picture was directed by Harry Hoyt and the presentation, a brilliantly conceived combination of hangings and lighting effects, was the work of Colby Harriman. He, too, performed proudly.

"The Lost World" is smashing entertainment. It contains all the sensations required by restless men and women—thrills, suspense, comedy—to which may be added the awful creatures we always believed lived only in black bottles.

CANADA PAPER MAKERS DEFEND PULPWOOD TAX

Montreal, Feb. 3.—Edward Beck, secretary of the Canadian Pulp & Paper Association, defended a proposed special tax on all pulpwood exportations and branded as "propaganda" the recent protest filed with Chairman Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at Washington by the National Publishers' Association.

The American publishers, he said at a luncheon of the Canadian Pulpwood Association, had, with their protest, taken the "initial step to stampede the public of the United States and Canada by brandishing the bogey of international hostility should the Canadian Government undertake to restrict the exportation of unmanufactured pulpwood."

WALTER E. CAHOON IS CAUGHT IN GLOUCESTER

Portland, Me., Feb. 3.—Charged with the illegal transportation of 582 gallons of Belgian alcohol, seized with a motorboat in Portland Harbor on January 31, Walter E. Cahoon of Gloucester was arrested in that city for the Portland police.

Search for Cahoon has been in progress since January 12, when he defaulted $500 bail.

Cahoon lives but a few doors from the police station in Gloucester, and word was sent to arrest him on sight. The motorboat was sold Saturday by the customs department for $900.

PATTERSON, LION HUNTER, ACCUSED OF MURDER

Prescott, Arizona, Feb. 3.—Charges of murder were filed against Ramsey Patterson, noted lion hunter, and Ralph Anderson, young rancher, and they were held without bail as the result of the death of James Shearer, seventy-three. The two claimed they tracked Shearer forty miles after he had stolen a mule and that Anderson fired when the aged man tried to get a rifle from his pack.

GIRL "DEAD" 3 MINUTES IS REVIVED

Wellesley Girls Are Thrilled as Opera Gallery Gods

SERVES $25,000 WRIT ON 'OTHER WOMAM'

MRS. MARY E. ARMSTRONG

Sues Mrs. Edna Preston of South Boston, who, she says, stole the affections of her husband, Joseph A. Armstrong of the American Moistening Company. The suit is the aftermath of a separate maintenance action brought by Mrs. Armstrong last year.

WIFE DEMANDS $25,000 IN LOVE SUIT

Service of a writ for $25,000 on Mrs. Edna Preston, of No. 19 Telegraph street, South Boston, is believed to be the first step in an alienation suit to be brought against the woman by Mrs. Mary E. Armstrong of No. 81 Sea View avenue, Malden, wife of Joseph A. Armstrong, of the American Moistening Company.

Mrs. Armstrong charges that Mrs. Preston, who is employed in Armstrong's office, stole her husband's affections and caused him to abandon her.

The suit is the outgrowth of a separate maintenance action in East Cambridge Probate Court last year in which Mrs. Preston was alleged to be the "other woman" in the case.

Mrs. Armstrong and private detectives testified that they had trailed Armstrong and Mrs. Preston on several auto rides and that on one occasion they had come upon the pair while the auto was parked in Cow Lane, a secluded spot near Waltham.

Mrs. Preston denied there was anything wrong in her association with Armstrong, her employer, and freely admitted going motoring and to the theatre with him. She denied even being alone with Armstrong in his office.

When asked if she thought she "had a license to go around with Armstrong because he was separated from his wife," she replied in the negative.

GETS 5 YEARS FOR ATTACK ON WOMAN

Mays Landing, N. J., Feb. 3.—Anthony N. Bullock, wealthy Wildwood realty broker, convicted of criminally attacking Mrs. Mary Newman of Philadelphia, was sentenced to five to ten years at hard labor in State prison by Judge William H. Smathers today.

Bullock had evidently expected a heavier penalty and thanked Judge Smathers after the sentence but received no answer from the Bench.

His attorneys at once appealed the case to the Supreme Court, and Judge Smathers fixed bail at $10,000, which was furnished. Bullock returned to his home where he said his aged mother was dangerously ill.

Mary Bullock, his twenty-five-year-old daughter, tried with her father but acquitted by the jury, was not in court when sentence was imposed on the father.

The alleged attack on Mrs. Newman took place in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel here after she had been engaged as housekeeper for the father and daughter. Bullock denied the charge and his attorneys claimed he was the victim of a blackmail plot.

Bullock is now under another sentence of ten years in the State prison for a similar attack on Mrs. Eleanor Selmi, also of Philadelphia.

TEARS AND GIGGLES MINGLE

Student Party Have Time of Lives at Rendition of Faust

Wellesley Music Club Night at the opera proved a hectic occasion for thirty vivacious, music-loving college girls.

Arriving late, they stumbled through the darkened house to their allotted standing pen in the narrow suburbs above the topmost tier of boxes, popularly known as "up under the roof."

They giggled in chorus as male standees were shooed away to the other side of the House. They pushed and shoved, good-naturedly, contending for the doubtful privilege of squeezing head and shoulders underneath the brass rail so they could see from their perilous perch the stars of the Chicago Opera Company on the distant stage.

They retired to the garret corners to weep at the touching tones of Edith Mason as Margaret, and shivered in ecstasy at the tenor voices of the great Feodor Chaliapin and the handsome Hackett.

MOVES UNDER PROTEST.

With groans of dismay, most of them bundled into wraps and furs, before the last act began, to make a dash for the last train Wellesley-bound, leaving behind lucky Evelyn Brown and Eleanor Moss, whom Edith Tarbell took home with her to Cambridge for the night.

Miss Tarbell's father, G. F. Tarbell, was the "daddy" of the party, and she and Eleanor and praise with Ralph A. Flanders, of the New England Conservatory of Music, manager of the local committee which guaranteed the opera financial success here. Manager Flanders learned of the blue atmosphere that pervaded Wellesley when the girls learned a few days ago that their order for tickets had gone astray, and he personally arranged for them to be allowed in "hog" half the standing room in the opera house.

FIRST TRIP TO OPERA.

"I paid for my standing room, and I won't move," said one unchivalrous male to "Daddy" Tarbell, as the girls shooed him away. But he was in a third-party minority and beat a retreat, though under protest.

Many of the girls confessed it was their first trip to the opera.

"It's my first, and I'd hang to the chandelier all evening to hear it," said Edith Tarbell.

"I never knew 'The Soldiers' Chorus' came out of 'Faust,'" admitted another. A giggle greeted a mattered reference to an "anvil chorus."

One of the girls moaned because she couldn't see, though she added she could hear "divinely." A chum retorted:

"Well, I can see, but not what I'm supposed to see!"

All the girls turned to her for an explanation of her cryptic utterance, but she carried her secret pleasure to the train, unrevealed.

TEACHERS IN PARTY.

Nothing—not even the ever present danger of toppling down on to the heads of society folk in the orchestra stalls in the immense plain below them dampened the happy spirits of the Wellesley party, which included Rebecca Chalmers, Eloise Smith, Mary Rittenhouse, Elizabeth Rogers, Nell Stogsdall and Elizabeth Pitts.

Teachers in the party were Miss Carolyn Fletcher, Miss Sterns, Miss Williams and Mrs. Stella Balderston.

When the early-leavers scurried away for their train, leaving the remainder of the party gazing in rapt admiration at the young St. Leger, conductor, leading the orchestra in the overture for the last act, a voice wafted back from the corridor:

"Remember, dearies, you must get up to make that 8:30 train in the morning, so you won't be late for classes tomorrow."

25 KILLED WHEN NAPHTHA WELL IGNITED

Baku, Azerbaijan, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Twenty-five persons were suffocated and fifteen others injured by the ignition of the largest naphtha well here.

The whole city is aglow from the gigantic flame issuing from the well, which is producing a roar like that of a blast furnace.

A tunnel has been bored forty feet deep to divert the flow of naphtha to other channels. The origin of the fire is unknown.

ROME, THE GOAL OF BOSTON PILGRIMS

Cardinal O'Connell (left), who will lead 600 Bostonians to Rome on February 15, where they will have an audience with Pope Pius (left insert) in the Vatican (upper right). On their arrival in the Eternal City they will attend mass in St. Peter's Cathedral (upper centre). Among those sailing from Boston are Miss Helen G. Kelley (lower centre) and Miss Rosamond M. Adams (lower right).

HUB PILGRIMS KEEN FOR DAY OF SAILING

Two weeks isn't such a long space of time, but when you're going to Rome and it's the first time you've traveled out of the United States, and there's that trip across the Atlantic, and you don't know whether to take your fur coat—well, it's terribly exciting.

These are reactions of the youngest Pilgrims to Rome in the party of 600 that will sail from Boston on February 15—which is so far away and yet altogether too near, with so much to be done.

For instance, how is one to know how to do as the Romans do when in Rome? What does one do for sea-sickness and what kind of person is susceptible to sea-sickness? There are a thousand questions to be settled.

But most of the older members of the party are all prepared and ready for the pilgrimage and the thrilling audience with Pope Pius XI—among them Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Adams of No. 89 Columbia road, Dorchester, who will take their daughter, Rosamund, and the mother of Miss Helen Kelley of No. 55 Circuit street, Roxbury, who will accompany the girl.

Cardinal O'Connell will lead the Pilgrims on the great expedition that begins when the lines of the Royal Mail liner Ohio are cast off.

$100,000 Fire Ruins Church

Toronto, Feb. 3.—College Street Baptist Church, one of the leading churches of the denomination in this city, was destroyed by fire today. The loss was estimated at $100,000.

PHONE SURPLUS TAPPED FOR DIVIDENDS

In the annual report of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co., made public today, President Matt H. Jones stated that during the past few years the company failed by a large sum to earn dividends.

He declared it was obliged to take $5,878,256.39 from the accumulated surplus of previous years in order to make up the deficiency. On December 31 the remaining surplus was $2,081,647.19.

President Jones said within the next five years the company must obtain additional money to the extent of approximately $100,000,000, to maintain present service and meet the demands for additional service.

HUB PHOTO ENGRAVERS HAVE ANNUAL DINNER

Two hundred members of the Boston Photo Engravers' Union and their wives had their annual dinner at the Wedgewood restaurant. Favors were distributed to each person. The committee in charge included C. W. Mann, G. H. Dodge, J. M. McNamara, R. J. Hoag, Joseph D. Fennessey, Fred Charles, L. Azulve, J. Mahoney, F. Obiun, J. Kiley and J. Crosby.

JURY IN DOCTOR'S CASE OUT 67 HOURS

Bessemer, Ala., Feb. 3 (I.N.S.).—The jury in the case of George T. Edwards, Fairfield physician, charged with slaying his young wife, has been out 67 hours, with no immediate prospects of a verdict.

It is customary in Alabama that a jury be discharged after 70 hours' fruitless deliberation.

TRUSTEES SEE 'L' DEBT WIPED OUT BY JUNE

Although the wage increase granted the "L" employees put the company in a financial hole in 1924, the Public Trustees believe that by the end of the fiscal year, in June, the deficit will be wiped out.

The "L" lines are now on a paying basis—have been since last November, according to the report of the Public Trustees, filed with the Legislature.

The report shows that out of every ten-cent fare paid, the employees receive 4.85 cents in wages. Which indicates that the five cent fare is gone forever as far as Boston is concerned.

Regarding the general condition of the road the report says:

"The Sumner and Tell months were characterized as usual by large expenditures in reconstruction work. While the Summer traffic was affected as usual by vacation and holiday limitations it was affected to an unusual extent by automobile competition and a depression in certain lines of business with accompanying lack of employment and consequent loss in riding.

"To November 1 the excess of net of service over receipts was $1,042,886.11, exclusive of charges for back pay and profit and loss adjustment. Since then a gratifying increase in receipts has taken place so that there is reason to believe that with the closing of this fiscal year on the 30th of June it will be found that receipts have been equal to expenditures. To accomplish this result, in view of the increased rate of wages awarded last Summer the trustees have been compelled to lessen service and to decrease working hours and number of men employed."

DR. MARION L. BURTON STILL SERIOUSLY SICK

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Dr. Marion Leroy Burton, who nominated Calvin Coolidge for the presidency at Cleveland last June, will be in no condition for several months to resume the presidency of the University of Michigan; the illness that has held him to his bed for sixteen weeks is no less critical now than it has been, and as recently as last Thursday he was close to death. That was the conclusion of Dr. Burton's condition made today by Mrs. Burton. Dr. Burton has not been on his feet since he became ill. The siege of pneumonia, with the heart and kidney complications that developed has been a severe strain upon his endurance.

GIRL DEAD 3 MINUTES REVIVED

Surgeons Restore Life to Child by Inserting Tube in Throat

New York, Feb. 3.—Through modern science a girl, who was dead for three minutes, may soon be playing in the streets.

Dorothy Davis, a six-year-old diphtheria victim, was recently brought back to life, it was revealed today, through an operation that is the current topic among physicians. It was performed by Dr. Julian Ballet at Lincoln Hospital. Though the child may recover her health, she may lose the power of speech and consequently may never be able to tell how it feels to be returned from the dead.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL.

The child was rushed to the hospital when her throat became so clogged that she could breathe only in gasps. The case was diagnosed as laryngeal diphtheria.

Realizing that life was only a matter of a few minutes, physicians hurried her to the operating table. Drugs were administered to stimulate her heart.

For fully two minutes the girl was apparently dead. Her breathing stopped and there was no heart action. Nevertheless the physicians proceeded with the operation, inserting an incision into the wind pipe below the point of infection and the insertion of a steel breathing tube.

When the operation was finished Dorothy remained to all appearances dead for another minute. Then she gave one faint, choking gasp and her heart action become perceptible.

GIVES FAINT GASP.

After another forty-five seconds she gave a second faint gasp. Physicians thought it was her last, but in another minute she drew a full breath and opened her eyes.

Within half an hour her breathing and circulation was normal, physicians say, and she was able to sit up. She was later removed to Willard Parker Hospital, which specializes in diphtheria cases.

Physicians said today that her condition is as good as can be expected.

ROXY IS ORDERED TO BE MORE DIGNIFIED

New York, Feb. 3.—"Roxy," who directs a group of singers every Sunday night from a Broadway motion picture theatre, has been ordered to make his remarks more dignified. Bandleading of the unseen audience, one of "Roxy's" outstanding traits as an announcer, has been eliminated.

When asked about a change in "Roxy's" style J. A. Holman, broadcasting manager of WEAF, said that "Roxy" had previously been requested several times to "modify his style somewhat."

On Long Non-Stop Flight

Villa Cisneros, France, Feb. 2.—Captain Lemaitre and Lieutenant Arnaldbard hopped off today for Dakar, Africa, on a 3,000-mile non-stop flight.

JOHN F. CHASE, PROMINENT BOSTON ATTORNEY, IS ACCUSED IN BALM SUIT

John F. Chase, prominent Boston attorney, is accused by Elliott S. Walsh of Nahant, son of John Jacob Walsh, former candidate for governor of Massachusetts, in a $100,000 heart-balm suit.

Walsh, who served in the naval aviation corps during the war, claims that the attorney stole the affections of his wife, Mrs. Edith Booth Walsh.

The papers in the case have been filed in the Superior Court at Salem.

Walsh's married life was short. He was married to Miss Edith Frances Booth in August, 1923. Last May the couple separated and the husband declares in his damage suit against the attorney, that Walsh enticed her away from him.

The Walshs have one child.

On account of the prominence of the individuals the trial is expected to attract more than usual attention.

Mrs. Walsh, it is said, is now living with a sister in Somerville.

Mrs. Walsh was employed in Chickering's office before her marriage. Walsh charges and denied in court pleadings in his complaint that the ceremony, despite his repeated protests, the husband says.

TRANSCRIPT EMPLOYE HONORED AT LUNCHEON

A luncheon in honor of Louis M. Hammond, treasurer of the Boston Transcript, who has just completed 50 years of service with the paper, took place at the Parker House, Hammond served the honors with William T. Morston of the composing room staff, who also joined the paper in 1875. One of the guests was Frank A. Clark, who has been on the Transcript for 61 years. There were 11 in all at the luncheon who had served 40 years or more with the organization.

POLICEMAN, BITTEN BY HORSE, DIES OF INFECTION

Fall River, Feb. 3.—Abraham Lincoln Pelling, for forty-three years a patrolman in the police department, died in St. Anne's Hospital from an infection that developed, it is said, from a bite in his side by a police horse more than a year ago.

JONES AND LOWRIE IN PUNCH FEST IN C. A. C. RING TONIGHT

FRUZETTI IS ON WITH GOODRICH

By JACK CONWAY

JIMMY JONES of Youngstown, Ohio, a welterweight of ability, is prepared to furnish Boston and New England fans with a few battle thrills at Mechanics Building tonight where he is billed to clash with Bob Lowrie, Scotch welterweight boss, in a ten-round bout under the direction of the Commercial A. C.

Perhaps Jimmy will drop in at the one-arm lunch where Nurmi purchased enough energy to make his thrilling dash at the B. A. A. games.

You will not find Jones as colorless a boxer as Nurmi. He is not an great a boxer as the Finn is a runner, but he gives the fans more of the spectacular. Nurmi is too perfect to be interesting. He runs much like Tris Speaker used to catch fly balls at Fenway Park when with the Red Sox.

Jimmy Goodrich

There are welterweights who have beaten Jones, but they are few. And to date nobody has put the skids under the Youngstown warrior in order. Eddie Shevlin and Dave Shade tried to do so, but they were tossed for losses.

* * *

LOWRIE says he will succeed where Shevlin and Shade failed. The latter two men are distinctly boxers. They depend upon science to win. Jones doesn't know much about clever boxing. He is a straight up, rushing fighter. So is Mister Lowrie. Consequently the fans will receive an opportunity to see how the Ohio entry shapes up against a wide open fighter.

JIMMY FRUZETTI of Brockton and Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo will quarrel in another ten-session affair. This is one of the elimination series to decide upon a successor to Benny Leonard. Fruzetti recently won over Goodrich at Brockton. Jimmy displayed his old-time form in that contest. Since then Fruzetti has given Sid Terris a hard battle and is of the opinion he will even his score with Fruzetti this p. m.

There'll also be a couple of more tens. The graceful Sammy Fuller of the North End will step into big time company when he opposes Tony Carney of New Bedford, while Spike Hennessey of Waltham will toss fellows at Mickey Landers of the North End.

JACK ZIVIC, Pittsburgh lightweight, has been installed a favorite for his ten-round bout with Joe Tiplitz, which will be staged by the Armory A. A. at Mechanics Building Thursday night. Zivic recently knocked out Lew Tendler in five rounds at Philadelphia, which is the chief reason why he has been made a choice of Tiplitz. The Pittsburgh puncher also has a knockout to his credit over Archie Walker of New York. He stopped Walker in a round at an open-air show in Brooklyn last Summer.

Tiplitz is as rugged as Zivic and a solid socker. He will give Jack a real test.

JACK SHARKEY is busy training for his ten-round bout with Charley Weinert, conqueror of Louis Firpo, which will be staged by the Suffolk A. A. on next Tuesday night. While Jim Corbett, former heavyweight champion of the world, was in Boston he gave Sharkey some valuable tips on how to gain fame in the ring.

"A youngster like you has his whole life before him," said Corbett. "I only wish I were twenty-three years old again and had the same chance to go out and make the big money that is offered to you. If you follow the rules of training you have a chance of making a million dollars within a few years. You weigh 188 pounds, which is enough poundage to enable you to defeat any heavyweight in the world if you live right, train properly, display the right kind of courage and some real ring ability. I have followed your record and have noted where you have defeated Sully Montgomery, Floyd Johnson, Homer Smith and Al Roberts.

"A fast boxer like yourself should be able to outpoint Romero Rojas and most of the other slow heavyweights without trouble. Dempsey, Wills, Weinert and Gibbons are the fellows you have to shoot at. They are the class of the heavyweight division right now. Defeat Wills, Gibbons and Weinert and you are established as a real contender for a bout with Dempsey."

2 MORE ITALIANS CHALLENGE STASIAK

Two more Italian wrestlers came to the front today and announced that they are ready to meet Stanley Stasiak, the giant Pole, but not under Stasiak's conditions.

Last week Stasiak issued a sweeping challenge to all Italian wrestlers, particularly Labriola, Gardini, Taramaschi, Romano, Vadalfi and Poggi. He further declared that he would throw any three of the lot in ninety minutes or forfeit $1,000.

To date Labriola is the only one who has agreed to wrestle Stasiak under the Pole's conditions. Gardini will wrestle provided his own Boston representative runs the show and Taramaschi thinks that an elimination tournament should be held among the Italian first, the winner to meet Stasiak.

Unless somebody steps up in the meantime Labriola will take up the cudgels alone and attempt to stay ninety minutes with Stasiak at the Grand Opera House Thursday night.

WALTER JOHNSON DENIED INJUNCTION

New York, Feb. 3.—The application of Walter Johnson for an injunction to restrain Thompson Feature Service, Inc., and the Brooklyn Daily Eagle from publishing a series of articles purporting to be the story of Johnson's career as a pitcher, was denied in Supreme Court.

The court said:

"On the papers submitted this motion is denied without prejudice to a renewal if defendants or either of them publish or threaten to publish any further articles after February 1, 1925. All articles complained of having now been published, I see no purpose in granting an injunction at this time."

TERRIS HURTS ANKLE, BUT WILL BOX MANDELL

New York, Feb. 2. — Sir Terris, New York lightweight, slipped and slightly injured his ankle while in training at Madison Square Garden for his match Friday night with Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill.

Terris submitted to an examination, which showed he had not sustained more than a mild sprain. He continued his workout shortly afterward and Garden officials announced there was no doubt he would be in shape for this week's contest.

NAME COMMITTEE TO SELECT SCHOOL FIVES

A committee composed of Graduate Manager of Athletics, Charles Downs of Tufts, George Hoyt and James LeClair will choose the teams that will compete for the New England schoolboy basketball title at the Tufts tournament on March 22 and 23.

Sixteen teams from all over New England will compete. Boston University will face Tufts in the final game.

DEMPSEY AND KEARNS SPLIT CONFIRMED

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
(International News Service Sports Editor.)

New York, Feb. 3.—Regardless of whether his retirement is on the plumb-bob level or is merely an expression of the prevailing mots in cauliflower ears, Jack Dempsey has fought his last battle under the management of Jack Kearns.

This statement was made today, by way of confirmation of the reported estrangement between the pair, by a man distinctly on the "inside" of nearly every big bout in this country.

"That part of the thing is 'in'," he declared. "You can bet your last cent on it. Unless something is done to bring them together, Dempsey and Kearns will go their separate ways from now on."

WOULDN'T GO IN.

He then went on to elaborate upon his statement by telling of an incident that occurred when the champion was his manager were last in the East. Dempsey, he said, was on his way past a famous restaurant in town when one of his party suggested going inside.

"Kearns is in there," he explained.

The champion's reply was to turn on his heel and walk in the opposite direction, after airing a few unflattering remarks about his manager, according to the story. It is not believed that the gesture was the result of a passing grievance.

Further significance is given the statement by the tone of Dempsey's recent announcement of his withdrawal from the ring. On that occasion he made reference to Kearns as merely a business partner, never a friend. That remark came as a shock to those who have witnessed their amicable relations of nearly 10 years standing.

NO RETRACTION.

Furthermore, no retraction followed the implied slight. Dempsey later saw fit to repudiate his decision, in part, by suggesting that he might make one more appearance in the ring, but he said nothing about Kearns.

Then also, there is the report of their hotel property in Los Angeles being up for sale. Neither of them are in immediate need of money, therefore the action in question is interpreted as a desire to divorce their interests.

The further fact that Kearns is said to be negotiating for Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, adds color to the estrangement story. Kearns has been after Walker for some time but the latter would have none of it because he cared nothing about running second to Dempsey in managerial esteem.

NOVICE CLASS FEATURE FOR EAGLES' SHOW

A large entry list has been received for the amateur boxing show to be conducted by the Somerville Eagles at K. of C. Hall, Somerville, on Thursday evening. A feature of the show will be the 118-pound novice class. Eddie Mondello, Roy Jones and Frankie Flynn are among the boys who will compete in the 147-pound division. A flock of other high-class ring men will also show.

OLD TIME SPORT STORIES

by GEORGE V. TUOHEY

Zbysko's Manager Refused Two $1,000 Bills for Boston Bout — He Wanted Smaller Denominations and Got It

This is the nineteenth of a series of articles on old-time athletes by George V. Tuohey, famous sports promoter, who has been prominent in athletics for thirty-five years.

STANISLAUS ZBYSZKO

"Take 'em away and give me a lot of small bills." The speaker was Jacko Herman, then manager of Stanley Zbyszko. The occasion was the night of the memorable match between Zbyszko and Aberg, the giant Finn, in Mechanics Building.

The remark was caused by the tender to Herman of two $1,000 bills, which was part of his share of the guarantee for which the men were wrestling.

The purse was 60 per cent. of the gross gate receipts with a guarantee that this percentage would not be less than $4,000, an unheard of amount of actual money paid for a team of matmen in Boston up to that time. It was more than was paid to Gotch and Americus by nearly $1,200, and has been exceeded on few occasions in Boston, although Zbysko received in actual cash $4,285 when he defeated Dick Daviscourt.

DEMANDED SMALL ONES

The idea of the promoter in bringing the purse to the hall in bills of $1.00 denomination was to make it easy for the manager of the men to carry. Herman, who had handled large sums during his career as a sport manager and promoter, shied at the big bills and absolutely declined to handle them. He wanted smaller bills and would not leave the hall until the larger ones were changed into heaps of little fellows, ranging in value from $1 to $10, with an occasional $20 in between.

"I want the small bills because these foreigners never figure they have any money unless it is in a big heap," Herman explained. "Then, too, if you lose one of those babies you lose the whole lot, while if you drop a single dollar you are not so apt to miss it."

And in the course of many years' experience and the paying over of approximately a million dollars during thirty years in sport promotion the writer has learned that for some reason the average wrestler and pugilist likes to feel that he is getting a whole lot for his services and the only way he can visualize a big sum of money is through the size of the package he has handed to him.

Some years ago John Farell would take nothing but single dollar bills. If he received a bill of larger denomination he invariably changed it at the first opportunity. He would then take the bills and wrap them around a piece of broomstick which he had cut for the purpose and with this swollen bank roll stuffed into his jeans he would strut around happy in the belief that he was a bloated millionaire.

Ivan Linow, who used to cavort on the stage of the old Columbia Theatre under the name of Leon, and who is now a movie actor of ability, used to get from $40 to $60 for his night's work. But he always wanted it in small bills, with a sprinkling of silver coin to give the roll weight and feeling.

LINOW'S EXPERIENCE

On the night he wrestled Gotch in Salt Lake City Leon received more money than he ever expected to possess. It was the first time in his life that he ever held more than $1,000 of his own, and he just about ran amuck. He had the money done up in packages of $100 in one-dollar denomination and these packages he had stuffed into every pocket of his trousers and coat.

But the possession of so much riches worried him and when he arrived in Chicago he invested in a "diamond" ring to add to his finds only to learn on his return to Boston that the ring was an Attleboro product which sold by the press for about seventy-five cents each.

60 OUT FOR B. C. BASEBALL TEAM

More than fifty candidates have signified their intention of turning out for the first Boston College baseball practice, scheduled for next week. Coach Jack Slattery believes in getting an early start, and intends to pick his nines before the middle of February.

The new coach has set his heart on defeating Holy Cross this year in both games, and is determined to make every day of the early season practice count. The teams will practice as usual in the Commonwealth Armory until Alumni Field is in condition.

Slattery will have all of last year's team with the exception of Frank Wilson and Tommy Phillips, both outfielders.

N. E. Skating Queen In International Title Race

New York, Feb. 3.—Three women skating champions will compete at Jackson Heights Saturday in the first international amateur title event ever to be held in New York City.

The field will include Leila Brooks, who won the Canadian championship last Saturday and shattered four world records; Ruth Muhlmeyer of Chicago, Western title holder, and Jennie B. Englemann, queen of the ice in New England. Kathleen McRae will represent Toronto and all other entrants live in New York State, the delegation including Elsie Muller.

The championship, which was relinquished by Gladys Robinson when she became a professional, will be decided in four events, 220 yards, 440 yards, half-mile and three-quarters mile, on a point basis. Thirty points are awarded for first place, twenty for second and ten for third.

PAL REED LIKELY TO MEET FLOWERS HERE

Pal Reed, Framingham middleweight, is likely to be Tiger Flowers' next Boston opponent, Reed recently won over Frank Moody, Welsh middleweight, a 4 then stepped in and gave Jack Delaney a close battle for twelve rounds.

Reed saw Flowers fight Tommy Robson. He does not consider the Tiger a heavy puncher and contends that the southern boxer would not stand up under a heavy body attack such as features all of Reed's bouts.

Negotiations are also underway for bouts between Reed and Berlenbach and Reed and Hambone Kelly.

ESKIMO DOGS WILL BE ON EXHIBITION AT SHOW

Those who have real interest in the thrilling dash of Leonard Seppala and his unbeaten dog team to Nome, Alaska, carrying diphtheria antitoxin to the inhabitants of the stricken city, will have an opportunity during the coming Eastern Dog Club show at Mechanics Building February 23-28, to see exactly what sort of dogs Seppala is driving. George F. Foley, superintendent of the show, has announced that a team of Eskimo dogs will be on exhibition and probably will give several exhibitions of "mushing" on Boston streets.

DODGE ENTERS 'CURLEY MILE' AT K. C. MEET

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Willie Ritola, most dangerous rival of Paavo Nurmi, will know in 48 hours whether he will compete in the fourth annual Knights of Columbus games at Mechanics Building Saturday night.

If he does compete Ritola will try to establish a new world's record for two miles, which Nurmi failed to do at the B. A. A. games. The record of 9 minutes, 3 2-5 seconds, is held by Jois Ray.

Ray Dodge, who gracefully stepped out and defeated our own Jake Driscoll in the 600-yard event at the Arena last Saturday, has sent his entry for the "Curley mile." He will be opposed by the best New England performers including Lloyd Hahn, B. A.; Leo Larivee, Holy Cross; Will Tibbetts, Harvard, and McCluskey of Boston College.

Another feature of the K. of C. meet will be a one-mile relay race between the Notre Dame relay team and Harvard. On the Notre Dame team will be Elmer Laydon, Adam Walsh, Don Miller, three of the so-called "Four Horsemen" of gridiron fame. Knute Rockne, famous Notre Dame coach, will come on for the meet. The Georgetown relay team is favored to win the Catholic College relay race, which will find the lads from Washington pitted against Holy Cross and Boston College. There is a handsome trophy for the winner of this event, presented by Cardinal O'Connell.

Georgetown will be represented by E. Brooks, J. Holden, W. Sullivan and G. Marrero. The Holy Cross team will be strengthened by the return of Tierney, who has been out with injuries.

Inside Golf

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 61 Golf Champions and "the most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

When the golfer, who is playing a fairly good game, say from 80 to 90, notes a tendency toward stiffness and binding throughout the upper arms and the shoulders at the top of his back swing, he should be warned that he is holding his left arm too straight. It is so straight that the stiffness observable is unavoidable. A slight bending or curving of the left elbow at the top of the back swing will immediately free the player from the feeling of shoulder tightness. The slight curving of the elbow will free the swing from its last vestige of noticeable exertion. It is this tightening that makes the swing appear to be work. Try letting the left elbow bend at this point, but not before you reach the top, and do not immediately overdo it just because the first try at it feels

Captain and Four Men Lost to Dartmouth Swimming Team

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 3.—The Dartmouth swimming team was hard hit today when it was learned that five stars had either resigned from college or were ineligible because of scholastic difficulties.

Those resigning are Capt. George Algar '26, back stroker and star since his freshman year; H. P. Hutchinson '27, a good 200-yard-dash man who has transferred to the University of Virginia, and H. T. Woodbridge '25, who in the recent meet with Wesleyan broke the Dartmouth record in the 220.

J. Campion '28, breast stroke swimmer, and G. T. Smith '26, a diver, are ineligible on account of low scholarship.

W. & J. Football Stars Give Blood to Athletic Head

Washington, Pa., Feb. 3.—Every man on the Washington & Jefferson college football squad offered to submit his blood when physicians decided that Robert M. Murphy, graduate manager of athletics at the school, who recently suffered a general physical breakdown as a result of overwork, must undergo a transfusion operation.

Three men were selected as having the proper type of blood. Joe Bastata, Wheeling, W. Va., fullback on the squad, was the first to submit to an operation. Two pints of blood were transferred to Murphy from Bastata's veins.

Charley Long, guard, of Grafton, Pa., and Guy L. Johnston, halfback, of Toronto, O., the other two selected, will be called upon should further transfusions be necessary. Manager Murphy was last night reported considerably improved.

FRIGERIO TRUE SPORT.

Lovers of clean sport will regret

Ugo Frigerio

Frigerio, while he has no doubt taken his defeats much to heart, is sport enough to a ways congratulate his conqueror and by his actions on the track has doubtless won thousands of friends in his three appearances in this country. Those who are handling Frigerio's affairs should impress upon him that a loss to Plant at this time is no disgrace when one takes into consideration the fact that Willis is walking in world record figures. At the B. A. A. games last Saturday he established a new indoor mark for 3,000 meters by travelling the distance in 12 minutes, 4 2-5 seconds.

A SPEED MERCHANT.

For a big man, Al Miller of Har yard is certainly one of the speed est that we have ever seen. Of course weighs Miller, who is 240 pounds, yet he has the Flying Lorenz Murchison a lot of the way in the 60-yard dash at the B. A. A. games, losing out by inches at the finish.

Miller reminds us very much of Arthur Rice, former Hunting ton School star, who went South with the Braves in 1917. Rice was 6 feet 9 inches in height and we ghed 195, yet he was one of the most active men in the Braves squad and had speed aplenty to boot. With all his great weight, Rice was as solid as iron and once told the writer that he couldn't get off an ounce if he tried. His death a few years ago robbed the big leagues of a promising catcher.

THE RIGHT STEP

Harry Mulloney, former Boston College southpaw, who has just signed a contract to pitch for Balt more, couldn t go to a better place than the Baltimore Orioles school.

Jack Dunn has the knack of making stars and if Harry has the stuff in him it will come out. Babe Ruth, Ernie Shore, Ill Mc Goo wins, Jack Bentley, Fritz Maisel and Groves, whom Connie Mack paid $100,000 for, are all products of the baltimore institution of baseball learning.

ANOTHER EVAPORATED MILK CHAT

It is true, as the advertisements say, that you can use evaporated milk wherever milk is called for, but it is also true that there are some recipes better adapted to evaporated milk than others and it is a few of these that I am going to give you today. However even in the recipes free to use whichever you prefer, I do not detect the least bit of the evaporated flavor.

Lots of you probably had chicken for dinner yesterday—same as I did—and so I'm going to give you the nicest recipe that is going to take care of some of my chicken remains.

RECIPE NO. 889.

CHICKEN CROQUETTES
Seasoning
2 cups cold cooked chicken.
1 teaspoon parsley.
1½ cups very thick white sauce.

Mix all ingredients and when cool shape and roll in egg and crumbs, then in egg and again in crumbs and fry in deep fat. Drain on brown paper.

Last I case for not a guaranteed mooch greatly

RECIPE NO. 890.

WELSH RAREBIT.

2 tablespoons butter.
2 tablespoons flour.
¾ cup evaporated milk.
½ cup water.
1 egg.
½ pound mild cheese
Salt, mustar, cayenne

Melt butter, add flour, mustard and cayenne to taste, blend well, add evaporated milk and water. Add cheese. Add chopped cheese and allow to melt. Add slightly beaten egg and cook slowly until thick. Serve at once on crisp crackers. This serves four people.

RECIPE NO. 891.

TUNA A LA KING
2 cups tuna fish
4 tablespoons butter.
4 tablespoons chopped green pepper.
1 ½ tablespoon flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 cup evaporated milk diluted with 1 cup water.
2 tablespoon chopped pimientos
½ cup canned, fresh or dried mushrooms
6 hlices buttered toast or pastie shells.

Melt butter add green pepper and cook until pepper is soft, then add flour mixed with salt. Stir until banded, add diluted evaporated milk and stir until smooth. Add tuna fish, pimientos, and mushrooms cut in pieces. Serve on toast or in pastie shells, and garnish with parsley.

And don't forget to open your can of tuna fish at least an hour before using and set it in open window so the fresh air will blow away the canned taste.

Last of all

RECIPE NO. 892

LOGANBERRY SHORTCAKE.
2 cups flour.
¼ cup sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
1-3 cup fat
1 egg
2 tablespoons evaporated milk
4 tablespoons water.

Sift dry ingredients together twice in bowl and beaten egg and milk. Rub in shortening with pastry blender. Spread in shallow pan, split butter and cover with the drained canned fruit. Save a few berries to put on top. Garnish with whipped cream. Serve six people.

And one more hint, to insure a perfect cup of coffee for breakfast—cream it with evaporated milk. Pour the evaporated milk into your cups just as it comes from the can—a tablespoon in each cup—then pour your hot coffee. It blends perfectly, and gives the coffee a golden brown color and delicate flavor. I've grown to [illegible] and use evaporated milk [illegible]

Stop Cold Now

Hot Lemonade Will Do It

IF you feel a cold coming on, stop it immediately with an old-fashioned hot lemonade.

Don't wait until it is too late. As soon as the tell-tale sneezing starts or you feel "chilly," take a warm bath and get right into bed with plenty of warm covers.

Then drink a large glass of hot lemonade. Drink it as hot as you can stand it. See how much better you feel in the morning.

The effectiveness of hot lemonade in the prevention or treatment of a cold is due to more than heat.

The influenza epidemic proved to thousands the efficiency of this simple, pleasant method. You, too, will profit from this practice whenever you feel a cold coming on.

The time to act is when you first suspect a cold—don't wait for chills and fever. Do it now. Just squeeze the juice of a lemon in glass or cup of hot water. Add sugar if you wish.

California lemons make the best lemonade. They are practically seedless, tart and heavy with acid juice. Buy them at any first-class store. Try the "hot lemonade way" tonight.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

A LOT of men seem to think that just because they marry a girl, they no longer have to tip their hat to her.

SHE may be your wife, but she's still a lady.

ONCE in a while you find a man who thinks a marriage license is a permit to keep his hat on in the house.

HE figures he got the girl he loves so he doesn't have to be a gentleman any longer.

HE usually remains polite for two or three weeks until the novelty wears off.

WHEN a man meets a woman on the street you can always tell whether he's married to her or not by the way he tips his hat.

IF he takes his hat clear off his head, the chances are he doesn't know her very well.

BUT if it's his wife he pushes it back about an inch and says, "Well, you're late again."

THIS book of etiquette was written for husbands as well as single men.

SOME guys come back from the altar and throw the book away.

THEY forget about being gentlemanly as soon as the honeymoon's over.

NO matter how long you've been married to a woman you're supposed to take your hat off when you kiss her.

THIS is one reason for a lot of single men going without hats.

BEDTIME STORY

Broadcast Daily Through WNAC

Bunny Decides a Short Tail Is Best

WE were traveling on the train from Tokio to Yokohama, the seaport of Japan which suffered so terribly during the recent earthquake.

At one station we got out to stretch our legs and take a brisk walk up and down the platform.

As we were ready to turn and right-about-face in our parade up and down the platform, Bobby suddenly spied the baggage car. The door was open and the baggagemen were busy carrying trunks, bags and boxes into the car.

"Look at that, Foxy Grandpa!" exclaimed Bobby, as we saw the coolies carefully carrying a crate to which was attached another long box—much in the same manner that a bouquet of American Beauty roses is sent from the florist's with their long stems encased in a separate box.

Over to the baggage-car he flew, wedged in between a truck and three coolies and poked his little nose into the car.

He stood there for a moment and then he came over to me with such a puzzled look on his little face that I had to laugh.

"What is it?" I laughed.

"A rooster," he replied.

"Is that all?" said I.

"That's just what I don't know," answered Bobby, "I saw the rooster all right. But what is in that long box attached to him?"

"Perhaps we can tell when we get to Yokohama," I said, for the crate containing the rooster was billed for Yokohama.

We landed at the station in Yokohama and Bobby could hardly wait to get out to the baggage-car to see the mysterious rooster with his trailer unloaded.

The rooster was carried carefully off and placed into a cart as if he were so fragile that he would break.

That rooster was a mystery.

The next day we happened into a public garden where there was an aviary—you know, a place where they keep birds. Bobby had hardly approached the high grating when he shouted:

"Foxy Grandpa—look at that cock with the long tail! Look at him up on that high perch!"

"Tell me about this bird," I asked the English-speaking guard.

"He is a Yokohama or long-tailed cock. They were bred in this country as far back as the year six hundred. The Province of Tosa at that time selected a feather for its crest and all the Samurai or retainers were required to carry a long feather on their spears in grand processions and celebrations. That is how these birds came to be bred with such long tails. They used to breed them with tails twenty feet long. But they are hard to care for, especially in traveling."

"Foxy Grandpa!" exploded Bobby, "that was one of those cocks we saw in the train yesterday."

"Thank goodness I don't have a specially built trunk to carry my tail around in," laughed Bunny as he measured the gorgeous tail of the Yokohama with his pink eye and then streached his little neck to take a look at his own.

NEWLYWED WAILS

By Nat N. Dorfman

ONCE upon a time a fellow used to court a girl by humming a tune on the mandolin. Now she prefers the hum of his motor.

A wise man doesn't write love letters unless he feels he can compete with the other love letter writers whose stuff has been read in divorce courts.

Any girl can tell you even a homely bridegroom in the home is worth two fascinating bachelors in the boulevard.

A lot of husbands are willing to admit by the in-laws of marriage if only they could do away with the in-laws.

Perhaps many women are natural born beauties, but the local druggist knows different.

Entertaining your best girl by inviting her to listen in a concert over the radio is like trying to keep her happy by letting her look at the wonderful diamond rings in the jeweler's shop window without buying her one.

No wonder Adam and Eve called the Garden of Eden their Paradise. They had no neighbors to pry into their affairs and, as far as can be ascertained, no one ever stole their milk off the dumbwaiter.

An optimist is a husband who tells the boys he can get out any evening he pleases and really believes it.

What's wrong with this sentence? Once upon a time there lived a wise man. He was married.

Why INDICAN Indicates Danger

"When Costiveness Writes, It Uses a Poison Pen"

ASK your doctor about INDICAN. He will tell you it is a substance looked for in examining his patients thoroughly. If he finds it in you—it means that the poisons of constipation are seeping through your blood into every muscle and every joint. This is what does the damage. It robs you of your pep—it poisons your optimism and good spirits—it pales your face and puts blemishes there — it gives your breath — causes indigestion. No wonder you feel drugged when constipated.

You can get only temporary relief from most laxatives. But Carter's Little Liver Pills, it has been found, not only "physic" the stomach, liver and intestines quickly, but also drive the INDICAN away.

Make This Test: Have an analysis made of your specimen, and if the doctor reports the presence of INDICAN, or if you can "feel" how poisoned you are —immediately start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills as prescribed by him, or according to directions. Now have another test made and see how the INDICAN disappears. See how your complexion brightens and clears, your tongue is sweet and clean, you can eat like a kid again, in most cases.

Important: Carter's Little Liver Pills, used for 67 years by millions of people all over the world, are a purely vegetable preparation and contain no drugs of any nature. They therefore act in a natural way and are non-habit forming. Money refunded if results are not satisfactory.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

They tell us that we are going to the dogs.

There is much headshaking and eye-rolling and doleful talking about the awful prevalence of habits and pessimists call terrible bad. Life has become all "jazz," they sorrowfully proclaim. Murders are more numerous than ever before. Suicides are increasing. Burglary and banditry flourish. The prohibition law is flouted on every side. Cabarets and night clubs infest all our big cities. Questionable dancing, we are also told, is indulged in nightly by all classes, from flappers in and out of college, to grandmothers rejuvenated and doleful to rival Judge of uncertain morals. Pessimists are especially alarmed over "petting parties," which, they would have us believe are abominations born with the present generation.

Extravagance is pointed out as another proof that we are headed for perdition. The automobile particularly incurs the ire of the headshakers and eye-rollers. They condemn, also, the readiness of women of every age to follow the rapidly changing dictates of self-styled Parisian dressmakers, and we are asked to look at the silly footwear our womenfolk now affect.

* * *

Men come in for equally severe tongue-lashing. It is they, the critics vow, who encourage women to drink, to smoke, to follow every form of folly. And, then, the amount of money men are squandering on building and maintaining golf courses, and swell club houses is so colossal that around many cities so much land is being monopolized by golfers that there isn't enough left for the building of homes. Palm Beach and other expensive resorts, it is declared, cannot begin to accommodate all the pleasure-seekers who are crazy to diapert themselves there.

* * *

And so on and so on, until one almost wonders that the world doesn't come to an end as so freely predicted those days.

* * *

Church membership is larger in the United States today than it ever was before and religious subjects are receiving more space in the newspapers and arousing more widespread interest than in many years.

Our colleges and universities cannot add enough buildings and teachers to handle the unprecedented number of young men and young women eagerly knocking at their doors, notwithstanding that many millions have lately been spent in enlarging higher institutions of learning than at any previous time in the nation's history.

Philanthropy is being practiced on a scale never paralleled in this or any other nation. Not only are million-dollar gifts common, but look how owners of businesses are now handing over control and possession to faithful employes.

More people have saved up enough money to own their own homes than ever before.

The amount of insurance carried for the protection of widows and children exceeds by billions the highest total reached in the world before "jazz" made its appearance.

Our savings banks are carrying more billions than at any other time since their inception.

Did not lack of space call a halt one could go on and on presenting convincing evidence that we are not so hopelessly bad as the headshakers and eye-rollers would have the world believe.

Considerable talk is going on around the Street regarding American Woolen's probable report for 1924. This will, of course, now mean "water that has run by the mill." No one has doubted that Woolen would make a poor showing for 1924, but 1925 is likely to be a very different story.

In a Christmas message to employes, on the eve of his quitting the presidency of the company, William M. Wood stated 1924 had been the worst year in his manufacturing experience.

One estimate places American Woolen's 1924 loss above $4,000,000.

In addition to this must be figured $5,000,000 of unearned preferred and common dividends that were paid out and a normal depreciation charge of around $2,500,000. This makes a total deduction from surplus of at least $11,500,000, which would bring the deficit down to around $22,000,000 against $33,500,000 prevailing at the end of 1923.

These figures demonstrate how ruinously is the resumption of common dividends until the surplus is built up to a point where its first object the protection of the $50,000,000 preferred and the $11,000,000 subsidiary mill notes.

An improved tone is sifting slowly into the cotton goods market, but the problem of obtaining an adequate margin of profit by manufacturers still is unsolved. The stiffening of the goods market and the firm manner in which cotton is holding up, to established prices seem to indicate some progress is being made.

Rather good demand for semi-finished goods which came into the market late last week was continued yesterday with a slight advance in prices. Cotton was up from 45 to 50 points for the day and this caused the mills to hold for higher prices. For the standard 64-60, 38½-inch print cloths 7¼ cents a yard was asked and paid for spot goods yesterday. Later deliveries were obtainable at 7¼ cents in some quarters, while many mills would not sell at this figure.

Fair business is understood to have followed the reopening of percales at a half cent a yard advance late last week, and in other divisions of the finished goods trade the market yesterday were considered encouraging.

Despite the turn for the better late in the week the Fairchild cotton goods index showed a slight decline, standing at 15.613, compared with 15.626 the week before, and the lowest point since December 20. The average price of spot cotton, however, had advanced from 23.51c in the previous week to 23.82c last week.

CARRIERS LEAD STOCK MARKET UPWARD

Carriers led the New York stock market upward today, with call money renewing at 3½ per cent. Bulls were not ready to relinquish their position of leadership and sales in this department of the market were still in large volume with a number of the well known shares establishing higher price records.

Because of their comparative indemnity and backwardness, the railroad stocks were in a position to reflect the bullish developments in the transportation industry, which came today in the report of the Railroad Association, showing a total of 924,254 cars loaded last week, an unprecedented volume of domestic trade for this time of year.

A number of the dividend rails, like San Francisco common and Northern Pacific common have been "behind the market" in comparison with other 5 per cent. rails like Baltimore & Ohio, and speculative attention has been focused on them this week.

Prices common moved up over 2 points to a new high at 66⅝ on court plan preferred and preferred; Missouri-Kansas-Texas common and preferred; Southern Railway, Great Northern preferred; Northern Pacific and the St. Paul stocks were the most active stocks in the good buying movement in the rails.

Next to show the effects of accentuated buying were the steel stocks with Gulf States 2 points higher, as the leader. The independent steel stocks pushed forward on higher price levels. Crucible was also up 2 points in spirited buying. Republic gained 2.

Studebaker, White, Maxwell, Mack Trucks and others of the motor shares commanded the best market in a week or more, Studebaker gaining more than a point at 45⅛; Mack Trucks up 1 at 138, and General Motors, Maxwell and Willys-Overland fractionally higher.

NEW THRIFT PLAN HAS LAUNCHING IN BOSTON

Thrift has appealed to Boston and the rest of New England ever since Benjamin Franklin in Colonial days started the world ring around the world via his printing press that still reposes in a place of honor at the Old State House.

Our thrift ideas have been ever welcomed here. One that presents a particular appeal is being introduced in these Eastern States by S. P. Kroker, Boston manager for the Empire Bond & Mortgage Corporation, which offers bonds and mortgages secured by income-producing improved real estate.

The Empire First Mortgage Protected Thrift Bonds are sold in small and large investors under a new provision. The investor's life is insured up to the full value of the undelivered bonds, for which he subscribes on a weekly payment plan. The Exchange Trust Company is local depository.

All members of the family, from 18 to 45 years of age, are allowed to subscribe for bonds to help build up their financial independence. For those over 45 years old to age 60 a small additional sum is required weekly.

The personnel of the board of directors includes men of recognized achievement.

BUILDING LOAN MOVEMENT IS GROWING

Building and loan association movement in this country has expanded greatly during the past decade. It is a striking fact that this growth has taken place during years when an unusual housing situation has existed.

In 1923 there were roughly 6,300 associations in the United States, while by 1924 this number increased to nearly 11,000. Membership in associations during this time increased from 2,500,000, to more than 7,200,000; total assets of associations from $1,000,000,000 to 2,900,000,000. In a review of the building and loan association growth of the past ten years appearing in the February issue of Commerce Monthly, published by the National Bank of Commerce in New York.

GROWTH IS NEAR WAR.

The largest part of this increase in assets has occurred in the past five years or since the war. During these years the scarcity of living quarters and consequent rents have influenced an unusual number of persons to look around for some agency that would be of assistance to them in getting more suitable and cheaper homes. A large portion of the building activity of the past two or three years has been of dwelling houses, and the increased assets of the building and loan associations have of course largely gone into building loans. On the other side of the picture is the relatively higher level of purchasing power of wages among certain groups of the community. Building and loan association are attracting chiefly to those who save on a small scale from periodic wages.

While it may be interesting to cast about for immediate explanation for the recent growth, more remotely the expansion is probably but a mature flowering of a long developing trend and is consonant with the satisfactory discharge of an economic function and a long process of education.

The growth in number and assets of building and loan associations has accompanied a broadening in their methods and fields of operation.

PAYMENTS VARY.

As the resources of a member fluctuate so likewise change the size of his payments without special arrangement. The method of deposit of dues, fines and premiums is relatively simple. There is an established interest rate on real estate loans, and the auction and premium method is also well established. Fines and initiation fees are not an essential part of the new type of association and fines for delinquency in paying dues are no longer as popular as they sometimes were.

It was long the practice of many persons to gain and not borrow. Shareholders of building and loan associations who had no idea of borrowing to obtain a home. They were interested in the fact that they got a good return their money yielded when invested in building and loan stock. But more than this, some shareholders have come to realize they will loan to non-members, or at least will loan to a person if he owns but a nominal amount of stock.

It is not necessary to be able to pledge a number of shares of the association, the par value of which equals the amount of funds borrowed, in order to secure a loan. The loan contracts are more elastic than in the days when most of the following out a program of payments established in the beginning, the borrower may increase his payments and retire his loan more than contemplated. The present organizations believe they have laid in their records the foundation upon which to build. In a recent issue of the American Building Association Bulletin a statement was made that in the fiscal year ending in 1923 the called associations of that year lost only $250,000. This was but a small fraction of the $3,300,000,000 of the assets controlled by building and loan associations as a whole.

It is reasonable to believe that the movement is still expanding. This conclusion is based on contracts let indicate that residential building is still going on apace. At the same time the earnings of the wage-earner continue on a high level, relatively. As associations get most of their loanable funds from the wage earner and, as they loan mostly on residential projects, the present position should at least be favorable.

AJAX EARNINGS FOR 1924 $1.50 A SHARE

President Weston of Ajax Rubber Co. says: "Operations for fiscal year 1924 show earnings of approximately $650,000 after interest, depreciation and federal taxes, equal to slightly in excess of $1.50 a share on 425,000 shares of common. There is every reason to expect 1925 will be the greatest year in the history of the industry for the consumption."

ATCHISON HAS GOOD OUTLOOK

CROSS-PUZZLE FANS OFF ON THIRD RACE

The lost word!

Were you groping for it?

Diligent solution of the Boston American Weekly Crossword Puzzles will uncover it for you.

The American's Crossword Puzzle Contest is now in its third week. The purse is still $250. Running all the way from a capital prize of $100 to eighteen $5 awards.

Success is sweetest when preceded by one, two or three failures.

Don't let your failure to carry off one of the big prizes the first or second week throw you out of the running.

The creators of the American checkerboards try to make them both interesting and profitable—educationally. It's up to you to do the rest. Stop a moment and try to imagine what you could do with an extra $100. No, it wouldn't take much effort. Neither would the solution of the weekly crossword puzzles.

PERSISTENCY WILL WIN.

You saw Saturday's list of prize winners. And, if you were among the contestants of that week, you wondered why you didn't get a prize. Surely, your secrette of solution were correct. That was the very situation that confronted the judges. And that's what made their selections so arduous.

But did it then occur to you that if you got them all correct that week there was no reason why you shouldn't get the same results another week? Agreed? Well, then you again would be among the group to be chosen from and this time having a more finished product for inspection, make your return an inevitable prize-winner.

Sheer ability, superiority of wit and neatness of application will put you among the cash grabbers. They're all there at the cashier's window waiting for your $100 first winner, $50 for second and $25 for show and a string of fifteen $5 handouts.

MORE PRIZES WAITING.

All you are asked to do for this money is to solve these six puzzles, write a letter of not more than 200 words describing the educational value of crossword puzzles, and see that you get into the hands of the Weekly Crossword Puzzle Editor before the close of business Wednesday. Then watch out for your name among the winners on Saturday.

Don't let up on your determination to come through on that $100 presentation.

It's yours by right of effort as well as anybody's else.

Keep on the road to mental and financial profit.

And you'll be the happier for it.

INSTALLATION BY DORCHESTER SOCIETY

Installation of officers followed by a dance will be held by the Junior Council of Temple Bethel in the vestry of their temple on Fowler street, Dorchester, Thursday evening. All members of the community are invited to attend.

Rabbi D. M. Shoet, officiating rabbi, will install the newly elected executives. Dr. A. S. Shubow, assisted by the committee, is in charge of the event.

The other officers of the council are: Harry Silverstein, president; Miss Ethel Kaufman, first vice president; Sam Rosen, second vice president; Miss Sarah Krasin, recording secretary; Miss Ruth Kouffman, corresponding secretary; Aaron Kagan, treasurer.

Council publicity will be taken care of by Dr. William Smith, who has served the organization in this capacity since the beginning three years ago. Louis Muchnis is in charge of the social committee. The Boston Hadassah Chapter will hold their next class in Zionism Thursday morning at 10 o'clock in the schoolhouse of Temple Mishkan Tefila, Elm Hill avenue, Roxbury. This interesting discussion will contain a review of a number of articles dealing with Chaluts. Mrs. Salter of Chelsea, Mrs. Hyman Morrison and Mrs. Samuel Cohen will lead the talk. These classes are open to the public. They are directed by Mrs. H. H. Rubenvitz. The examination is also making plans for a Purim ball to be held March 10 at the Hotel Somerset.

When a Jewish boy reaches the age of thirteen he becomes Bar Mitzvah, in other words confirmed. For the poor and needy a celebration of such event passes unheralded. However, the Jewish Children's Aid Society makes provision for just such cases with their Happy Day Fund. This fund is set aside for a birthday party or the purchase of confirmation gifts or graduation presents for the needy boys and girls so that they, too, may taste a bit of life's luxury.

The fund thrives on the contributions of 750 members. The society is subsidized by the Boston Federation of Jewish Charities.

The society is in full swing just now in preparation for the biggest event of their year. The annual ball in aid of the children will take place at the Copley-Plaza, February 12. Mrs. William Mann is in charge.

The Roxbury Ladies' Aid and Purl Society will hold their regular meeting tomorrow afternoon at the B. Y. M. H. A. building on Seaver street, Roxbury.

"Atlantic Ocean—Do Not Look!—Private"

What We Appear to Be Coming to, in Massachusetts

Who owns the beaches?

Where may Mr. and Mrs. John J. Citizen and the little Citizens go for a Summer plunge in the ocean?

In Massachusetts, to Revere Beach and Nantasket Beach, maintained by the Metropolitan Park Commission, to municipal reservations at Gloucester and Plymouth, and to smaller reservations set apart by towns or associations.

Elsewhere, in general, "NO TRESPASSING!"

Attention is directed to our disappearing beaches by a Special Committee on Public Reservations, reporting to the Massachusetts Legislature that:

"It seems perfectly reasonable to anticipate that within a very short time the general public will be EXCLUDED FROM PRACTICALLY ALL THE BEACHES except those owned by the public or by public-spirited citizens or organizations who are willing to keep them open for general use."

Judicial decisions have made it clear, according to Senator Webber's committee, that "the owner of the upland bordering the ocean in general has title to the fee of the land as far as low water mark and is therefore able to EXCLUDE THE GENERAL PUBLIC FROM THE SEASHORE, except possibly for the purpose of 'navigation, fishing and fowling.'

"In other words, THE GENERAL PUBLIC HAS NO RIGHT TO BATHE OR TO USE ANY BEACHES FOR RECREATION WHERE THE UPLAND IS PRIVATELY OWNED."

If this be true, the Webber committee is no more than conservative in its recommendation that no time should be lost in taking definite steps toward acquiring and preserving for the people of the Commonwealth some parts of the seashore frontage.

The State already has taken over mountain tops, ponds and woodland trails, Greylock, Wachusett Mountain, Mount Tom, Mount Sugar Loaf, Walden Pond, a dozen others, not to mention parcels devoted to fish and game propagation and at least thirty State forest reservations.

OCEAN frontage, on the other hand, is falling into private ownership to such an extent that before long the citizens who own none of it will be deprived of the privilege of bathing, of playing on the beach or even of LOOKING OUT UPON THE SEA!

The committee recommends the appointment of an unpaid commission, to be composed of State officials, for the purpose of investigating available sites for public reservations along the seashore.

PROMPT action—perhaps with more speed than the program outlined by the committee—will be good for the Summer tourist business, good for our own people, good for the public health.

Here, it seems to the Boston Evening American, is a wonderful opportunity for the Legislature to do something constructive, something that will help and please and profit EVERYBODY.

Keep at least SOME of the beaches for the people!

Do Our Souls Come Back and Live in Other Bodies?

The Doctrine of Reincarnation Says "Yes." That Doctrine Would Certainly Promote Charity, Human Solidarity

Hundreds of millions of human beings believe that after death our souls return here and enter other bodies.

In India, Japan and elsewhere it is thought that the soul of a human being sometimes enters the body of an inferior animal.

Many a religious person in those countries refrains from killing a fly or a lizard, lest he should destroy his own great-grandmother.

In this belief of reincarnation a system of rewards and punishments is bound up.

It is thought that wicked men's souls are sent back to inhabit the bodies of low animals—the very wicked man is sent back to inhabit the body of a woman.

For a soul to go through existence in a woman's body is looked upon as a great calamity—and none need wonder at that who is acquainted with life in India, where poor little girls are married at nine, ten or even younger; where the widows until lately were burned alive when their husbands died, where life is generally made a nightmare for womankind.

There is a great deal of speculation everywhere today as to the destiny of the soul, and the possibility of its coming back to work here in some other body.

Many men among those religiously inclined, and even among clergymen, do not accept literally the Jewish conception of Heaven.

Many are inclined to think that men are put here to do some actual, useful work on earth, and not merely on probation previous to their entrance to an eternal home of solid gold, jasper, etc.

This writer has no theory to offer in realms where both reason and experience fail.

But the reincarnation theory might produce good results under modified conditions.

Many a rich man on his way to the train or boat drives through the slums of a great city and looks, absent-minded or indifferent, at the children in the streets, tired, hot, ill-fed and uncared for.

He might look differently at those children if he could be made to believe that a few short years would find him a tenant in one of their wasted, underfed bodies.

The most beautiful of all religions, that which in its spirit will last forever, no matter how far men may progress morally, is the religion preached by Christ — BECAUSE IT COMMANDED MEN TO DEVOTE THEMSELVES UNSELFISHLY TO THE WELFARE OF OTHERS.

The real Christian needs no selfish urging born of a belief in reincarnation.

He is bound to work for others, to protect poor children, to sympathize with unfortunate women, apart from any personal interest.

TEMPLE FOR BUSINESS TO WORSHIP

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE Woolworth and the Equitable Buildings have been called the Temples of Business.

They really are great marts of trade.

The Cathedral of St. John the Divine that is building in New York has a better right to be called the Business Temple. It is a place for business to worship, to forget the cares of this world, and to think upon eternal problems.

Bishop Manning the other day said from the pulpit of this church:

"I wish that some part of this cathedral might be built by those interested in sports and recreations. I should like to see the steel men, the grocers, the clothing trades, the actors, the musicians, the artists, the writers, the physicians, the educators and the men of science all have their own distinctive part and place in it."

The great cathedrals of the Thirteenth Century that adorn Europe were built by the people. They received their land from the feudal lords who in that day represented the government. The merchants of the city were glad to give of their money, of their profits in trade, toward it. The stone was quarried and carved by the people of the city, and the whole community gathered in front of it on festal days.

We do not enjoy the unity of faith which that age did, but we probably have more religion. That is, our people are spiritually minded and disposed to consider the problems of life from a religious viewpoint. The people are hungry for the spiritual diet which the Church provides.

All that is needed is to abate sectionalism and factionalism in the churches, and they will receive the hearty support of the community.

The Cathedral of St. John the Divine is an Episcopalian edifice, backed by that sect, but it aims to be of service to all humanity. A recent contribution to it was made by a prominent Jew, and people of all faiths are uniting in its construction.

It may be possible that the Cathedral is not to be the form which the religious sentiment of this age shall take. But it is fitting that that sentiment shall express itself in a beautiful building. The construction of this building calls for the cooperation of the entire community, just as its support will depend upon the extant citizenship.

Any sect has an opportunity to enlarge its usefulness and base its works upon all human need, and its endeavor to do so should meet with all encouragement.

There is plenty of money in the United States, and money that is being used for all kinds of purposes. We consume a large amount of property annually. Would it not be well to take part of our surplus and invest it in some permanently beautiful building that through the ages it might represent an abiding feeling?

Nothing recalls to us the beauty of the middle ages like their buildings. It may be true that their civilization, as has been said, was "built upon a dung heap." Many wars marred their history. But there was underlying all a sense of beauty and of purpose. The evil is passed and exists only on the written page, but the good that they did and felt has been carved in stone and erected for us in their beautiful cathedrals.

Shall this age leave anything equally beautiful?

HUGE MAGELLANIC CLOUDS

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Subjects of Popular Interest.

THE Harvard Observatory, under the direction of Harlow Shapley, has just published a third circular, all within a few months, on the Magellanic clouds, about which astronomers are beginning to learn the most astonishing facts—facts that make the stoutest imagination gasp.

The Megallanic clouds are, in their association with history and sentiment, the most romantic objects in the starry heavens, with the possible exception of the constellation of the Southern Cross.

When the first circumnavigators and the first explorers and adventurers in the great South Seas began to return to Europe they thrilled the listeners with their stories of the blazing cross that swung around the south celestial pole, and of two mysterious shining clouds that adorned a dark quarter of the heavens like fragments flung off from the Galaxy.

These strange luminous clouds got their name from Magellan, who saw them on his first circumnavigation of the globe. But an Arabian astronomer had spied one of them in the middle of the tenth century, and called it "The White Ox."

Sir John Herschel studied the Magellanic clouds from his observatory at the Cape of Good Hope, but it is only since astronomical photography has made such immense strides that much has been learned about them.

Both are of an oval outline, the large cloud being six or seven degrees across, and covering about forty square degrees of sky. To the naked eye they have a nebulous look.

The Harvard observations and calculations have brought out the following almost incredible facts:

The small cloud is situated at a distance of thirty-one kiloparsecs. A kiloparsec is a thousand parsecs, and a parsec is about nineteen million-million, or nineteen trillion miles. Consequently 31 kiloparsecs means 589 quadrillion miles! That is more than six thousand million times the distance between the earth and the sun!

Yet at that distance the cloud glowed brightly enough to draw the surprised eyes of Magellan and his sailors. This cloud is no less than two kiloparsecs in diameter, equal to fifty times the distance from the earth to the star group called the Hyades.

There are, among its hundreds of thousands of stars, about 300 supreme monsters, each of which is fifty thousand times brighter than our sun. These are the most luminous objects yet found in the heavens. Besides it has more than two hundred and sixty thousand lesser giants many of which are more than a hundred times brighter than the sun. After all, it seems no wonder that Magellan saw it.

The large cloud is distant about 34.5 kiloparsecs, or, say, 655 quadrillions of miles. It fills so vast a space that Dr. Shapley says:

"Such a cloud centered on the sun would include the while local system outlined by the bright Class B stars in Perseus, Orion, Vela, Centaurus and Scorpio, and, extending farther, would go well beyond Fracsese, and the double cluster in Perseus, and many of the open cluster in the Milky Way. It would probably include the large clouds of faint stars in Cygnus and Monoceros, but would fall short of the star clouds in the "Sagittarius region."

Yet these stupendous aggregations, universes in themselves, when far enough away become only curious little shining clouds that a lone observation in an unknown ocean at night may set his course by!

ONCE-OVERS

YOUR BODY, LIKE A MACHINE, NEEDS CONSTANT CARE

You seem to be getting thinner and thinner and when you do stop to think of it you are actually alarmed over your condition.

Instead of trying to think for yourself what there is in your life and mode of living which could produce your condition, you begin to be frightened, in fact so afraid that you might hear something unpleasant that you stay away from a doctor rather than consult one.

Are you sure that you eat enough nourishing food?

Are you not in too great hurry all the time to have the food you do eat do you much good?

Do you go without some meal altogether rather than deny yourself some sport which is such a strenuous exercise that it takes off flesh and at the same time you do not satisfy the appetite which it awakens with food which means strength?

Give more attention to that old machine of yours. If you don't, it will give out sooner than it should.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE cross-word puzzle of a girl's life, these days, is to find a man whose heart contains a four-letter word meaning romance.

* * *

A man's heart is something like a furnace; it grows cold unless he is constantly dumping out the ashes of his dead love to make room for the fresh fuel of a new flame.

Helen Rowland

Many a man who would put his hand into the fire to prove his love for a girl, before marriage, won't even take a baked potato out of the oven for her, to prove it, afterward.

* * *

After a few years of domesticity, a woman's sight becomes so keen that she can see right through her husband without looking at him—and a man's so dull, that he can look right through his wife without seeing her.

Marriage should be the highest sacrament of a woman's life—yet, alas, to most of us, it is either an adventure, an experiment, a matter of convenience or a compromise.

* * *

No man is so critical of the darns in his socks as the one who wore undarned hose for years before he found a woman to keep his toes within the proper confines.

* * *

The vision of an old love never quite fades from a woman's heart; but a man believes that the best way to erase one face from the tablet of memory is to draw another right across it.

* * *

If the Road to Perdition is paved with good intentions, the Good Roads Committee must be terribly rushed just now gathering in the new shipment of shattered New Year's vows.

Nowadays, a man seems to hold right past the age of discretion without even stopping.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Danger on the Elevated

Editor Boston American:

I understand that your newspaper has become more or less interested in the treatment of the passengers riding daily on the Boston Elevated system. At about 5:45 p. m. I boarded car No. 5900 at Sullivan square, bound for Elm street. At Riverside avenue we collided with a Ford sedan which threw the crowded car in more or less of a panic. You have probably noticed in the centre of the car a rope which is to be pulled in case of emergency, which will open all the doors of the car. This rope was pulled, but it failed to exercise any control over opening the doors, the result being that the passengers near the door began to kick them and broke some of the glass. I wondered just what might have happened if the car had jumped the track and the people all decided to get off the car at once, it would have probably resulted in serious injury to many of the women passengers in the car. It seems to me that this is just another sample of the neglect and inefficiency of the Boston Elevated.

THE HELPING HAND

Letters Not Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls or Anonymous Letters. No Names Published.

Following is the second article in the appeal Baroness Wrangel is making to the people of New England for aid for the tubercular exiles of Russia in Servia and Bulgaria.

The Boston American has loaned the Helping Hand Column to her for three days and is confident that she will receive generous support. Address all donations to Baroness Wrangel, No. 322 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.

PITIFUL PLIGHT By Baroness Wrangel

The plight of the 150,000 Russians of all classes stranded in a barren Balkan country is pitiful beyond the power of words to describe These stricken human derelicts look to me as their only possible source of succor. I am deluged with appeals and am working for my unfortunate compatriots with all the self-sacrifice and energy of which I am capable.

Here is a sample of the cries which reach me:

"We have a home for invalids which accomodates twenty patients. They each pay 25 dinars (40 cents) a month. Our patients are armless, footless, blind, etc., and are powerless to support themselves.

Have No Money

"In spite of the low rate charged most of them cannot afford even 25 dinar a month. And we are in debt to the extent of 3,000 dinars (about $37.50).

"We have no money and our invalid home is in a terrible condition. SIX patients sleep just on the bare boards; eight have bags of straw instead of mattresses, and the rest sleep on a very old worn-out mattress. We have no bedclothes or bed linen. And not everybody has a blanket."

This appeal comes from Panchevo, Jugo-Slavia.

Mme. Zavadsky, late nursing sister during the World War, writes as follows:

"In order to escape total blindness I must immediately do all I can to improve the general condition of my health which can only be done in a sanatarium. In view of my affliction I cannot at present undertake work and I have no other means of livelihood."

Children Starving

Mme. L. Vinogradova writes:

"My husband has cancer of the stomach. To give him the needed treatment out of my wages is impossible. An operation is necessary, but before it can be performed he must have intensive feeding to establish his strength. In spite of his critical condition he has to go to work because even his small earnings are necessary to sustain our two children.

"Only a month ago I had a child and this also required some expense. At present we are in a terrible condition. My young children are cold and starving. The place we are living in is terrible. The water is dripping from the walls, as we live in a cellar.

"Don't refuse me help. Baroness. Save my children. Don't let them die from starvation and exposure."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

OH, forget, if you will, the lengthy list of the prizes man's toil has gained since the earth swung out of its primal mist and the first land's heights were drained. Lose the whole of science, the whole of art and go back to the far, dim days when man lived and man loved with grim fear at his heart of the world's untrodden ways. Oh, forget, if you must, all the weary climb up the roads that our fathers tread as they marched with the marching of time-lean time to life's heights from the mire and the clod. But cling fast to the thought of the love you knew in the dawn of your golden youth, when your spirit soared as the sky-lark flew, when you visioned a world all truth. And forever hold, though you lose the rest, to the peace that is more than gold, to the faithful heart in a kind friend's breast and the bright, brave dreams of old.
